HARVARD MEET

For the first mile the men were well bunched, but on the fifth lap McClure, with Brown, Benson and Cook, started to open up a lead. The four kept well together until the last turn when McClure started his sprint. Brown came up from behind and challenged him but they struck the straitaway. The Harvard men put up a good fight but Brown was the stronger of the two, and his sprint at the finish brought him to the tape ten yards ahead of McClure. Cook and Benson were right behind, while the remainder of the runners were well strung out.
