JOINT C. E. MEETING

Harvard-Tech Civil Engineers Hear Lecture.

The C. E. Society meeting, Wednesday evening, at Pierce Hall, Har- vard, had an attendance of about 150, of which Harvard students were by far in majority. The officers were disappointed because so few Tech- nology men took advantage of this lecture. A representative of the Lehigh Cement Co., gave a talk short talk on the manufacture of cement, after which there was a reel of moving pictures on the same subject.

According to the speaker until 1735, there was practically no cement used, but at this time the Randallia nat- ural cement gradually came into use. However in 1850 hydraulic cement was first scientifically tested in Eng- land, and after this, mills were built.

The plant of the Lehigh Cement Co. is located on an immense quarry. The output was about 90 million bar- rels. The C. E. Society meeting, Wed-
