Cornell Wins (Continued from Page One)

The wrestling tryouts for the Tech team were held Monday over the new rules, debarring freshmen, and was not allowed to run. Nye ran in his place, but he has not been trained and was unable to do himself justice. Tech on the whole, ran a fair race, but hardly lived up to expectations.

The course is the hardest over which an intercollegiate race has ever been held. Nearly all was through fields or over newly built roads which were very soft. The sun was just warm enough to take the frost out of the ground and make the course wet and muddy nearly all the way.

At the start Harvard, Yale and Princeton went away fast and held the lead for the first mile. The Cornell team was running well bunched within striking distance of the leaders. Morrison of Princeton led for four and one-half miles, when he weakened and was passed by both Potter and Wenz. As the leaders came onto the track Morrison sprinted, passed Wenz, but was unable to catch Potter, who finished with a lead of fifty yards.

Cook and Breenan picked up a position well up in the bunch at the start and stayed there through the race. Brown lay back and was the first part of the race, holding himself in for the last mile, where he let out a sprint which carried him up the pack and across the tape in 24th place.

Seventy-five of the seventy-six men who started finished the grind. The team scores were as follows:

1. Cornell-1, 5, 6, 8, 9, 12-35
2. Harvard-6, 18, 10, 19, 24-77
3. Yale-4, 10, 20, 27, 28-51
4. Technology-11, 14, 18, 19, 31-123
6. Princeton-4, 23, 25, 26, 42-220
7. Colby-3, 12, 23, 33, 43-85
8. Dartmouth-23, 21, 22, 59, 67-181
9. Brown-33, 32, 40, 49, 50-165
10. Columbia-17, 46, 48, 50, 52-216
