SWORDSMEN ON GUARD

Tech Fencers To Polish Foils For Winter Season.

The Technology fencers will start preparation for the coming season early next week when candidates for the team will be called out. The sport has been hindered in the past by difficulties which have been eliminated this year and with a large number of men out to support the team, a good season should be forthcoming.

Manager Herman has made tentative plans for the coming season which will be discussed at the first meeting of the squad.

The first matches will be held in January, so that there is not very much time to bring the team into shape.

HARVARD MASS MEETING

This evening the Harvard undergraduates and graduates will hold their last mass meeting before the game with Yale, and Technology students have been invited to attend.

The singing and cheering at the Harvard-Yale game is always a feature of the contest, for which reason all the students sitting in the cheering section are especially urged to take part in the meeting tonight.

The meeting will be held in the Harvard Union, five minutes’ walk from the Harvard Square subway station. It is expected that Coach Haughton and the members of the team will attend and say a few words.
