PROP. C. L. NORTON.

PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS (Continued from Page One)

One of these is his paper before Congress which is to take up the Sanitary Aspects of Waste Disposal. Tumash as many of the countries have no regular national boards of health at present, the timeliness of such a discussion is self-evident. One of the missions of Professor Sedgwick in Washington is to attend the meetings of the Advisory Council of the U. S. Public Health Service, of which he is a member, and in this connection he will give two lectures to the student officers during his stay. Last week he took part in the annual meeting of the American Association of University Professors and this week will treat the matter from the engineering point of view. This differs in some particulars from the legal method in that in addition to the actual physical equipment, there is a value in what may be termed "intangibles," which are actually property, but of such nature that it is the court that determines its value. It is usually the function of an engineer that they give suggestions to the court, but they are not generally dealt with in detail by them. The process is not an exact one, although there are some who have considered it.

HOCKEY NOTICE
