The Lounger, buried before a nice warm fire, sits and wonders what sort of a night it will be in Boston. The students and the Faculty wonder what sort of a night it will be in Boston. The students and the Faculty wonder what sort of a night it will be in Boston.

The Editor's Note-The following postscript was appended to the Lounger's letter:

"Yes, the Dean went flat in the water and got soaked to the skin. The 'public' would be interested in knowing that he managed to reach the shore on his own.

The orchestra will meet for rehearsal this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. The necessary arrangements have been made for its performance on Saturday evening. It is expected to make a double effort to be worthy of the confidence reposed in it by the students. The Lounger is fully confident of the success of the performance, which is to be held in the Great Hall of the Institute.

The technical problems which Mr. Dickinson spoke of, the All Syrenc dance is bound to be well attended. The knowledge that the affair will be held on Saturday evening is the treasurers' assurance that the fund will not be used for empty seats. The incident to which Mr. Mendel refers is sincerely regretted. The appearance of the numerous groups of whispering Seniors about the corridors it would appear that he has not been. The exhibitions of the students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which was sponsored by the Institute, is a well-known fact.

The Lounger saw the Dean swimming down Boylston Street a couple of days ago and when the Dean landed at Roger's Wharf, the Lounger suggested that he go swimming down Boylston Street.
