

CLASS ELECTIONS AND STRAW VOTE RETURNS

Hughes for the Country and J. M. DeBell for Senior Class—J. T. Leonard President of Juniors and G. F. French for Sophomores

MANY ATTEND MASS MEETING IN SMITH

About one hundred and fifty men were present at the mass meeting Friday night, at which the election returns were made public and the plans for "Tech Night" were announced. E. P. Brooks, president of the 1917 class last year, presided until DeBell's election as Senior president was announced.

The meeting opened with several Technology songs and yells and then F. W. White, Jr., '18, manager of the track team, made a few announcements about Field Day. The seats will be divided off into sections, each class being grouped together. The admission will be seventy-five cents for reserved seats and fifty cents for bleacher seats. He urged that everyone help to increase the attendance at the field, as it could be made much larger than in former years.

The plans for "Tech Night" were then outlined by William Eastman, '17. The official show this year will be "Sybil," Julia Sanderson and Donald Brian, the leads in the show, have expressed their intention of putting some local color into the play wherever it is possible.

The seating arrangements are follows: The football teams will have the lower boxes, the upper classmen will have the orchestra and the freshmen will have the balcony seats. It was urged that all those at the meeting "talk up" The Night to other students in an effort to reach the thousand mark in attendance this year.

The seats will be put on sale in the main lobby of Building 10 today at 1.00 o'clock. An additional twenty-five cents will be charged for each ticket, the proceeds from which will go to the athletic fund.

The percentage voting in each of the classes was: Sophomores, 23 per cent; Juniors, 33 per cent; Seniors, 44 per cent.

COSMOPOLITAN MEETING

Professor Seaver and Dean Burton Speak to Foreign Students

The first meeting of the Technology chapter of the Cosmopolitan Clubs Associated was held Friday evening in the Technology Dining Room. Forty men were present, and all but two or three of these were students from foreign countries. Four speakers were on the evening's program, the first being Professor Seaver, one of the councillors of the Cosmopolitan Club, and the man who has for years given the special course in English for foreign students.

Professor Seaver, after extending a welcome to the men from abroad, spoke of the position occupied by the foreign student in Technology. As a teacher, he said, he had always found great satisfaction in working with the best of material, and these students from other countries, sent to Boston as picked men, quite often offered him the best material he received. Nevertheless, he believed that it was true that hardly one-third of the students coming to Technology from abroad ever received the degree of the Institute. This was explained, he said, by the fact that the men were handicapped by the language, and also by the fact that a large number of those students start out with the intention of taking only a limited amount of work.

Dean Burton, the second speaker, was introduced as the "father of the Cosmopolitan Club"; for it was he who, in 1909, when the Club was founded, lent his support and encouragement to the undertaking. The Dean has ever since

PROFESSOR MUNSTERBERG CENSORED

Professor Cram Objects to Harvard Professor's Attitude

Last week a resolution was forwarded to President Lowell of Harvard, signed by Professor Ralph Adams Cram, urging Harvard to drop Professor Munsterberg from the Faculty of the University. The resolution was drawn up by the Boston branch of the American Rights League, and was signed by several prominent Bostonians. According to the resolution, Professor Cram objects to the views and affiliations of Professor Munsterberg, the noted German psychologist, in that they "seem inconsistent and in conflict with the duties and obligations of a teacher or member of the Faculty of an American university or institution for the training of American youth."

Professor Munsterberg's views on questions of the European War have occasioned much editorial comment in the American newspapers, and have been the subject of many debates.

FRATERNITY MEN

All fraternity men who are not affiliated at the Institute are requested to hand their names with the name of their fraternity, the chapter, and the school last attended to the Technique Office in the basement of Building 1.

SYBIL SEATS

Tech Night Sale Opens Today in Room 10-001—Cash Down

The Committee in charge of Tech Night after Field Day, the seat sale for which opens today at 1.00 o'clock in Room 10-001, has secured for this year's celebration one of the most promising announcements of the early theatrical season—"Sybil"—with Julia Sanderson, Donald Brian and Joseph Cawthorn, opening a week from today at the Colonial.

The sale of seats will be conducted this year under the successful system

DEAN BURTON, BURSAR FORD AND MAJOR COLE FOR HUGHES

Republican Club of Technology Formed With E. P. Brooks as President—Democrats Snowed Under in Straw Vote

CUSHMAN STILL FOR "PEACE-AT-ANY-PRICE"

JULIA SANDERSON IN SYBIL

included the ballot of only a single member of the Faculty, it was possible to ascertain the opinions of a few other influential and prominent men of the Institute. Dean Burton cast his vote for Hughes a little before 10.00 o'clock, even going so far as to draw a line through the names of the other candidates.

Major Cole when seen by a representative of The Tech on the political question asked, "Do you think I'm a fool? Wilson. Nix!" The Bursar said, "I will excuse you this time, but don't do it again. Hughes. Naturally." Secretary Cushman signified Wilson at about 2.30 o'clock.

Following the mass meeting Friday evening in the Caf the assemblage of loyal G. O. P. men was addressed by Mr. Henry B. MacDowell, a prominent member of the Republican Machine in this state, who is also the son of General MacDowell of the Civil War. He said: "There are a thousand Tech Alumni in the National Hughes Club. We want you to back up the Alumni. My grandfather was a technical man. I am a consulting engineer. (Applause.) I am a graduate of Harvard. (Silence.) Forgive me for that. (Violent cheering.) My father was a fighter. He lost the battle of Bull Run. Why? Huh! Because twelve thousand men wanted to go home on a sixty day contract. (Cheers.)"

E. P. Brooks, '17 (Rep), was unanimously elected president. The following were chosen as members of the executive committee: J. M. DeBell, '17 (Rep), R. O. Lowengard, '17 (Rep), P. C. Leonard, '17 (Ind), N. E. Tourtelotte, '17 (Dem), and H. E. Lobdell, '17 (Rep), P. N. Cristel, '17, and S. C. Wooten, 2d, '18, both Democrats, were defeated for executive committee. R. J. McLaughlin, '17 (Rep), was appointed secretary. The executive committee then went into session and chose L. L. McGrady, '17 (Rep), as vice-president, and D. E. Bell, '17, (Prog), as treasurer.

started by last year's Committee, "first come, first served, and cash down." The extra price of the tickets is to cover the athletic deficit. Under the same agreement as last year, the Institute Committee has pledged itself to Cohan, Rich & Harris to bar streamers, confetti and roughhouse. Any person or persons "starting anything" will be asked to leave the theatre, and in case of serious trouble the performance will cease.

"Sybil" was the most tumultuously applauded of the musical comedy offerings in New York last season and the continued success of this remarkable three-star combination is a lasting testimonial to the remarkable foresight of Charles Frohman, who first brought Miss Sanderson and Brian and Cawthorn together in "The Girl From Utah," a nationwide success.

"Sybil" surpasses "The Girl From Utah" both as a musical entertainment and in the opportunities it gives the three stars individually and collectively. Victor Jacobi wrote the music and the score presents but one interpolated number, Cawthorn's song "I Can Dance With Everybody But My Wife," and that is a classic. In the course of a year this song has become almost a national institution. They have been singing it and dancing to it from New York to San Francisco. Anyone who has ever heard Cawthorn deliver one of these patter numbers knows what to expect.

Julia Sanderson never has had a more congenial role in her long list of triumphs than Sybil and Donald Brian is capital in one of those captivating parts which he does so ingratiatingly. The company is a large one and the production is on a scale of magnitude surpassing any musical offering in which the three stars have previously appeared.

TECHNOLOGY HOLDS HARVARD 6-0

On Saturday of last week the Freshmen met defeat at the hands of the Harvard Freshmen on Tech Field. Although the Tech men were outweighed 15 pounds to the man they put up a fine game. In the fourth quarter, with the score 0-0. Tech was penalized three times for offside plays. The ball then went to Harvard on our 4-yard line. From this position Harvard scored in two downs. The lineup for Technology was:

R. E. Abbott; R. T. McGee; R. G. Casey; C. Morse; L. G. Abercrombie; L. T. Rowen; L. E. McDonald; F. B. Gibson; R. H. Hansen; L. H. Nathan; Q. B. Dean.
