THE TECH BANQUET

1898 wires were installed connecting with the New Orleans Association, the St. Louis Association, Thomas Edison at Menlo Park, and Theodore Roosevelt (then Governor of New York) at Albany. Mr. Litchfield closed with the poem he recited at the twentieth anniversary Reunion of the class of '85.

At this point Mr. Gardner arose at the suggestion of the toastmaster and told of Mr. Litchfield's work. Mr. Gardner said "Ike" was the best friend the undergraduates had. He said Mr. Litchfield was the founder of the Northwestern Alumni Association and through his efforts this body became the most powerful of Technology Alumni Associations. He added that this Association so far surpassed the Eastern ones that it was decided to ask Mr. Litchfield to come East in order to take entire charge of the Alumni work at the Institute. Mr. Litchfield accepted, knowing by doing this he was sacrificing all personal gain that might have been made in business. Mr. Litchfield since then has worked with his greatest effort, and has built up the powerful Alumni Association, the thorough organization of which made the Reunion last June possible and successful.

Mr. John Ritchie, Jr., the head of the Technology Publicity Department, was the next speaker. Mr. Ritchie told the "under-grads," that the engineer should have the training which newspaper work offers. He said the aim of the newspaper was to educate the public, and articles must be written so that they will be understood and be interesting. He added that this was the quality which most engineers lacked. He explained the purpose of the Institute Publicity Department.

After Mr. Ritchie's talk, the toastmaster expressed regrets that Mr. Alexander Rice McKim '85, President of the Board of Directors Volume 4, had been badly injured in an automobile accident at Plattsburg and was unable to be present, and read a telegram, which would be sent him, expressing regret that he could not be present because of his injuries and hoping for a speedy recovery.

Professor Henry G. Pearson, head of the English Department of the Institute, spoke on the point system and explained the purpose of the newly organized English sections.

John M. DeBell '17, former associate Editor-in-chief of The Tech, and President of the Senior Class, told some very amusing things that he had observed in newspapers, and gave some pointers to the new men on how to land a big job in activities.

Howard P. Claussen '16, General Manager Volume 35, complimented the paper on its appearance and increase in size, and said there were less errors than in former years.

The results of the elections for The Tech were as follows:

Sporting Editor—Arthur J. Giuranovich, Jr., '18.

Associate Sporting Editor—Webster
B. Shippey '19.

Assignment Editor—Oscar D. Mayer
'19.

The freshmen elected to the News Staff were: Allan Addicks, E. S. Burdell, C. B. Capps, J. H. Coyle, J. I.
Doyle and K. Roman.

The following were elected to the Business Staff: Dean Willey '19, W. L.
Winant '20, J. W. Meader '19 and Lyle
S. Stuart '20.

ENGINEERING CORPS

The members of the Engineer Corps are continuing their study of knot tying, and expect to take up rigging and blocking in the near future. A complete equipment for a company of engineers has been shipped by the Government, and is expected to arrive by the first of December.

The classes for theoretical work meet on Wednesday from 3 to 4 o'clock, another from 4 to 5 o'clock, and a third on Thursdays for practical work. Any men who have not yet joined, but wish to do so, may come out at any of these meetings, but only those who can attend regularly are desired.

At present the Corps is on a purely voluntary basis, and men are under no obligation except that of attendance.
