Prom Difficulties

Some dissatisfaction with the conduct of the sign-up campaign did arise out of the disappointment wakened by the fact that so many juniors have met in trying to subscribe too late for the Prom Committee. Many of these applications were received after the limited number was reached are disposed of to blame the Prom Committee for being so considerate that their applications were forestalled by those of freshmen, who should not have been given preference.

It is a matter of fact, blame for the present situation is to be laid on the unagreemented rush for places, and not to any neglect of mistake on the part of the Committee. Previous Committees have included freshmen from the Prom, as in the case of the Class of 1917, found themselves unable to pay expenses, and as the Prom Committee is in itself responsible for deficits caused by its own action, the present Committee could not have expected to repeat such a mistake. A corresponding campaign had been planned for the Prom sign-ups, but due to the unexpected demand for reservations the list was made up before the campaign was even completed to begin. The Committee, upon its own initiative, made arrangements to extend the accommodations, making room for fifty more in from-year. The extra fifty places were swallowed up like the others.

It seems the best way out of the difficulty, in view of the increased interest in Junior Week activities, would be a separate affair for the three men, whose present reservations for the Prom might be transferred to waiting juniors. A little like this was carried out by the 1917 Class in the freshman year, and was successful.

Swaying into Line

AATICISTS will not be denied their timing. The Socialists in the Senate and the Progressive Republicans now make no pretence of being the seen of the Nation; in the student body the Collegiate Anti-Militarist League, and so far as the Harvard for American Neutrality are adding a weighty influence to the barely receptive enthusiasm of the student body.

It seems to me that the best way to carry through the program of the Socialist and the Progressive Republican is to make a correlation of the principles of the Socialist with the Frenchman's and the Progressives' spirit with the Frenchman's spirit, and unite the two.

Patriots must be united to carry through the program of the Socialist and the Progressives. Let us join the forces of the Frenchman and the American against the German and the Imperialist.

Let each man see to it that the dedication is in his own heart, and the high purpose of the nation in his own mind, ruler of his own will and desire.
