Headquarters for Tech

At the close of his last lecture The Lounger believes he was giving attention to one of the many mysteries clustering about the Institute. He must now return to one of the most prosaic of his routine troubles, and reluctantly review a new case of the instructor to whom the time of others is as nothing. There is only one new and bright circumstance attending the case of time-piracy which has just cropped up in the Fads and Fashions section of the Mathematics Department. Usually classes are held over for a voluble three minutes, a forgetful five, or an apologetic eight. The latest recruit of the "faithful unto death" hangs on systematically to the entire ten minutes which his greedy eye discerns between hours. However, he accounts for this little peculiarity by the constant statement (made to a freshman class) that he has a perfect right to do this. It is thus again necessary to take notice that Rule 74 still holds, and to refer to the context of that rule as applied to the termination of classes five minutes before the hour. With the true eccentricity of greatness always shown by those least entitled thereto, The Lounger's friend has taken the trouble to forget a rule so unessential to his own comfort. The Lounger takes occasion to suggest pictorially a way for Mr. L.—by, and any others so inclined, to develop their power of drawing—he may add a far safer way of drawing crowds than the method based on the ignorance of the victim.

R. R. R. BOOKS FOR MARCH

Thirteen Books Recommended by Professors Sedgwick and Talbot

The new list of books for March under the general title of "Recommended Recreational Reading" are now at the disposal of the student body and may be obtained in the General Library on a shelf located just to the right of the entrance.

The list comprises some very interesting books, which are at the same time instructive. These books are purchased through the T. C. A. by a fund established for the collecting of a Walker Memorial Library. They are recommended by some members of the Faculty or some prominent Alumni. This month's list is as follows:

- Men of the Old Stone Age, by Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn.
  - Poems, by Alan Seeger.
  - War Bread, by Edgar E. Hunt.
  - Counter-currents, by Agnes Repplier.
  - Abraham Lincoln, by Lord Charnwood.
  - An autobiography of Theodore Roosevelt.
  - A biography of O. Henry, by Prof. Smith of University of Virginia.
  - The Critical Period of American History, by John Fiske.
  - Montcalm and Wolfe.
  - Red Book, by Thomas Nelson Page.
  - All sorts and Conditions of Men, by (Sir) Walter Besant.
  - The Glory of the Conquered by Susan Claepell.
- There are at present about forty books in the entire collection, but the demand is so great that only about seven or eight books remain on the shelf.

SHOW REHEARSALS

The rehearsals for the week are as follows:
Wednesday—5, Orchestra in the Caf; 5, Cast in Room 1-190; Thursday—5, Cast in Room 1-190; 7.15, Chorus in Room 1-190; 5, Orchestra (Room will be announced); Friday—5, Cast in Room 1-190; 7.15, Chorus in Room 1-190; Saturday—2, Cast in Room 1-190; 2, Chorus in Room 1-175; 2, Orchestra in the Caf.

INFORMAL CONFERENCES

Today is the beginning of the third week of the Extension Conferences which are being run by the T. C. A. The purpose of these conferences is to give the students an opportunity to confer informally with the members of the Faculty. Questions of vital interest may be talked over with the professors in their offices. The important subject, that of the choice of course, can be discussed freely. The following is a list of the professors who are at the disposal of the students for a term of about six weeks. After this period is up and if the undertaking warrants it, a new group of professors will be asked to serve.

- Prof. W. K. Lewis, Room 2-127, Monday 1-2.
- Prof. A. E. Norton, Room 1-138, Wednesday 1-2.
- Prof. W. E. Wickenden, Room 4-216, Tuesday 12-1.
- Prof. R. S. Williams, Room 2-314, Friday 1-2.
- Prof. G. W. Swett, Room 3-463, Monday 12-30-1.30.
- Prof. W. J. Drisko, Room 4-415, Tuesday 12-1, Friday 11-12.
- Mr. H. Sutherland, Room 1-370, Friday 2-3.

left far in the rear by both teams. O'Hara was entered in the dashes and won first place in his heat. In the semi-finals, each of his opponents stole more than O'Hara could regain the short distance, and he was not placed in the finals.

On the evening of Feb. 21, the teams traveled to Hartford for the annual Naval Militia meet. For the third consecutive time the two-mile team lost to Dartmouth by a few yards. The mile relay team was pitted against Bowdoin. After Doon, as first man, took the lead on the second lap, the Technology runners were not again passed, and finished thirty yards ahead of the Bowdoin anchor man. O'Hara placed third in the dashes.

Team Work in Intercollegiate

As a climax of the season's work came the Intercollegiate meet at Philadelphia, at which team work was given precedence to individual accomplishment. Each man on the relay team entered in this meet was to run a mile and a fifth, making a total distance of four and four-fifths miles. At the end of the first mile and a half, the Technology runner pushed into second place to Cornell, followed by Columbia and Pennsylvania. Cornell won the race in record time by a lap over M. I. T., who in turn was one lap in advance of Columbia and two ahead of Pennsylvania. O'Hara was first in his first heat, second in an extra heat, was fouled in the semi-finals by a Yale man whom he dragged over the finish but still got second, and won first place in the finals. This gave him the indoor sprint championship of the country. Doon and Loomis each took seconds, the former also placing fourth in the semi-finals. Russert was fourth in his first heat. Places in each heat were scored, and Technology was second to Harvard only, defeating both Yale and Cornell. The high jump team were forced to take third place by Cornell and Pennsylvania.

WRESTLING SEASON

capped by lack of a suitable place for work and only obtained their limited space in the basement of Building 1 through the efforts of the Dean.

Giles an Institute Star

In the 115-lb. class H. L. Bone '17 was one of Technology's star performers, and only lost the championship of New England by a narrow margin. Captain Rounds and L. A. Hoffman '17 shared the honors in the 135-lb. division, each man winning half of his matches, while Giles and J. T. Kiley '18 excelled in the 145-lb. class. Giles who is former amateur state champion of Texas, was the other Institute entry to reach the finals besides Bone in the N. E. I. C. A. A. and has not lost a bout in dual meets this year. H. L. Wirt '18 deserves especial mention in the 158-lb. division, for he was often compelled to wrestle at 157 lbs. also. At his own weight he lost but one dual match of the season and succeeded in throwing the light heavyweight man at Springfield Y. M. C. A.
