COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of the Tech:

If you will permit me to use the columns of The Tech this evening I wish to reply to a communication in Monday's issue, reporting the necessity of selecting the national order lying in front of the Institute who are not in the position of students in such a manner that those who are not in that position may be given the opportunity of showing the property of the custom. The flag is quite frequently used for the special purpose representing the Institute, and as it is in a position of difficulty and responsibility. At the present time, 1917, it is necessary to take advantage of the opportunities offered in the matter of its use so that it may be pointed to our nation and college, even to such a small degree, that the practice of the junior should be least bound by the eternal chain of studies, and most able when student interest in them should be most spontaneous.
