For Technology in service.

The success of that work depends upon the individual interest and effort of every woman who is proud of Technology men, and their part in the War.

Mrs. Edward Cunningham is the Chairman of the Friends of Technology and organizes for the men at the front, and to cooperate with wives and mothers left behind.

Because delays very vitally in times such as these may not have occurred, and the war is severe.

Consider these facts:

1. Rapid efficiency requires prompt training for action, so that no man can be ready to assume his station in the army.
2. The plan for the rapid training of men and equipment is based on the principle that every man should be trained in his own profession, as the army, as well as the country, is dependent on the various classes of men for its efficiency.
3. The efficiency of a man is of vital importance to the country, as his service is required in time of war, and his performance of duty is expected in time of peace.
4. The efficiency of a man is of vital importance to the country, as his service is required in time of war, and his performance of duty is expected in time of peace.
