NEW BUILDING WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER FIRST

Institute Will Turn Over New Union on Completion This Fall to Army and Navy Training Schools

RUSH TO FURNISH INTERIORS

The Walker Memorial will open on September 1. It will be immediately turned over as a barracks to the training schools of the various sections of the signal enlisted reserve, new named in building one, the nucleus of the naval reserve, now occupying the first two floors of building two, and the new naval school which will open Monday in the top story of building two. Such was the announcement given out at the office of Bannock yesterday.

Work of completing the building will begin immediately after the school activities and serve as a place for social intercourse among Institute students who have been residing at the Walker Memorial since the opening of September 1.

The Walker Memorial seems far from completion, but the contractors say that the new system will be ready for occupancy on the date set. The fact that the Institute library in the Walker Memorial will begin next Wednesday morning, making all the broad, airy rooms available, is an ample reason for the long, straight-completion of the building program.

(Continued on page 2)

JUNIORS GO TO CAMP

Leave Saturday Morning For Newfound-Land-Roaring Sunday

General Orders No. 26:

All men will report at the Institute on Friday, July 13, 1917, for service in the Navy. In full uniform, regardless of the weather, they must report on this date with their rifles, with a blanket, raincoat, or poncho, and toilet paper. Battalion will en-

General Francis Amasa Walker, third president of the Institute, visited the Union Army at the outbreak of the Civil War, and became a General at the age of twenty-five. After the struggle between the North and the South General Walker wrote the history of the Second Army Corps of the Union troops. The Walker Memorial which bears his name will open in September to house the training schools of the United States Government now at Technology. That the current secretary should be turned over to war service is a fitting tribute to this military President of the Institute.

SOPHIS PLEASE ALUMNI

Spirit of Camp Cunningham First-Rate, Says J. P. Monroe

James P. Monroe, Secretary of the Institute Corporation, who visited Camp Cunningham at Technology, Maine, last Sunday, was interviewed on his return to the city by a reporter of The Tech. In regard to his inspection of the camp, Mr. Mon-

WILL PUSH WORK ON THE AVIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, July 11—The administration's aviation bill, which provides for an increase in the army air service, will be pressed by Representative Van Ransselaer Lansing '98, in charge of the bill this session of Congress. Because of the importance of the aviation bill in the national defense, Mr. Van Ransselaer said yesterday in his remarks before the House that he would do all in his power to get the necessary appropriation for the aviation service.

Letter requiring graduates of four government navigation schools to take two months intensive training in board

WILL PUSH WORK ON THE AVIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, July 11—The administration's aviation bill, which provides for an increase in the army air service, will be pressed by Representative Van Ransselaer Lansing '98, in charge of the bill this session of Congress. Because of the importance of the aviation bill in the national defense, Mr. Van Ransselaer said yesterday in his remarks before the House that he would do all in his power to get the necessary appropriation for the aviation service.

Letter requiring graduates of four government navigation schools to take two months intensive training in board

WILL PUSH WORK ON THE AVIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, July 11—The administration's aviation bill, which provides for an increase in the army air service, will be pressed by Representative Van Ransselaer Lansing '98, in charge of the bill this session of Congress. Because of the importance of the aviation bill in the national defense, Mr. Van Ransselaer said yesterday in his remarks before the House that he would do all in his power to get the necessary appropriation for the aviation service.