The Opening

It will be a very short time now until the Walker Memorial will be renamed the third group of trustees, who will be, not technologists, but government aviation students. One wonders if these men will be able to hold on to their quarters with the respect born of a knowledge of the history of the building of, of how it has been planned and looked forward to for years, of how it is to stand as the student center of the University since the traditions of the College and Technology will grow up. To the aviators the building will serve only as a temporary dwelling, but for Technology it must extend its use far into the future.

The Institute students are being deprived of a great deal more than the usual receiving, but the sacrifice is for the government and will be made cheerfully. It will house the future flyers, however, to take good care of their new building lest they rob the wreath of the student body of the Institute.

MINNEAPOLIS PLAUNING NEW SCHOOLS

The Minneapolis Board of Education has decided to authorize plans for a new high school to be erected in the coming school year, subject to the ratification of the people. The present high school will be inadequate in many respects, and the new building will be built to meet existing needs. The new school will have a capacity of 3,000 students and will be equipped with modern educational and athletic facilities.

FOUR RETAIL TITLES

Better than fourth in the broad jump and Harry Wright, who had not put on a shoe this year, won by an unexpected margin. Wright also set a new record for the 300-yard dash, which he completed in 40.5 seconds, two seconds faster than the previous record.
