CONCERNING THE WALKER MEMORIAL

WHEN the Corporation decided, last summer, that the best possible use which could be made of the Walker Memorial building during the period of the war was to turn it over to the Government as a dormitory for the School of Naval Aeronautics, there was a certain degree of dissatisfaction expressed by many Technology students. It seemed to them that they were being deprived of a privilege to which they had been looking forward for a long time and the enjoyment of which they were, consequently, rightly entitled. After a little thought, however, most of the objectors realized that any sacrifice which they might thus be made small in comparison with the sacrifices which the intended occupants of the building were preparing to make. The grambling, therefore, was short-lived.

This fall, the student body has been going to the opposite extreme. Very seldom do we see any evidence of any will to devote the building to the use of the few privileged which remain to them in the building, namely, the Dining Room. Is it possible that many of the men do not realize that this service is for them as well as for the aviators? Or is there some feeling of resentment against these "intruders" still smoldering? If the latter is the case, it argues an exceedingly small and selfish attitude on the part of the few students who may entertain such a feeling. The incidents of the summer which caused some friction between the students of the Junior Clinton and the army aviators are of the past, and at this late date we are glad to say, there is no more of the feeling between the various schools stationed at the Institute. But we are progressing.

Last year at this time the "CAF" was feeding just about twice as many regular students of the Institute as the Walker Memorial is doing now. This is indeed a pity, for the purpose of the Dining service was to feed the majority of Technology men, not a pitiful minority as at present. It may be that the students do not realize that they may use it, or it may be that the sort of service they are getting there is not satisfactory. The Tech would like to hear some views expressed on the matter and invites communications from its readers. It is worth while to go to considerable trouble to find what is wrong.

BUY A BOND

ALTHOUGH students as a class are not oversupplied with material wealth, we feel it our duty to make an appeal to Technology men to subcribe to the Liberty Loan. Remember that every bond sold, no matter of what denomination, helps the cause of this country so much the more. Perhaps the news that the students of our sister institution in Cambridge are running a campaign to sell a million dollars each month may stimulate some of the Institute to show them that Technology wants help too. Buy a bond, you Technology man, we do not need to advertise it.

RIFLE CLUB MEETING

The third meeting of the Rifle Club will be held tomorrow, October 23, at 3:30 p.m., in the new rifle room. All members are expected to be present, as plans for the coming year will be discussed.simplicity of the system makes it easy for the Professor to keep the work in line. All members are expected to come to this meeting to find out what the club is doing.
