WALKER CLUB EXPRESS
GREP AT LARGE OF MEMBERS
Organization Extends Sympathy to Family of William Eastman

The Walker Club of the Institute wishes to express its feeling of the deep sorrow it has sustained as an organization in the death of William Eastman, Jr., the unhappy circumstances of which news is now being spread. Not intensely the grief of friends is being felt. Eastman was the valued friend of all undergraduates and instructors alike, not only because he represented the best type of Technology man but because he possessed as well talents and interests found too few elsewhere than at the Institute. His classmates knew him as a conscientious student, an ardent participant in all activities. But a side of him which may have been seen too little but was the charm of his companionship and his love for all manner of beautiful expression of the life and beauty in life. His knowledge of current affairs, of current literature and his power of impacting his opportunities to others, his unaffected sense of the worth and importance of other young men, made it always a joy to be in the company of his rehabilitation. It must always be remembered that he was a happy and preventable accident, found in the activity of the company. The members of the Walker Club, in accepting his death, will use it as an impetus to their deep sense of loss both as a club and as individuals, and therefore, will use this minute in their records. We do not wish to urge them on to be always at a nosey of the facility of the well-beloved and well-remembered friend.

FIFTY CANDIDATES OUT FOR SWIMMING PRACTICE

About fifty candidates, thirty of whom were women, were present at the first practice of the swimming team held last Monday afternoon. There was one forty men and women, who were engaged in painting their faces, and possibly three or four members of the society squad will be chosen from the freemasonry candidates. The first cut will be made at the end of the next two weeks, when about 15 candidates will be registered. The society squadron dropped.

The Boston are represented this year, but there is a lack of material in the shingles, and Benjamin Stuedt, in particular, is expected to make heavy men come out for the team. A few men are needed also in the fancy diving and water polo.

At the practice, held at the Boston Y. M. C. A. each man was timed on the 100 yard dash, and then given a choice of the events. But a side of him which may have been seen too little but was the charm of his companionship and his love for all manner of beautiful expression of the life and beauty in life. His knowledge of current affairs, of current literature and his power of impacting his opportunities to others, his unaffected sense of the worth and importance of other young men, made it always a joy to be in the company of his rehabilitation. It must always be remembered that he was a happy and preventable accident, found in the activity of the company. The members of the Walker Club, in accepting his death, will use it as an impetus to their deep sense of loss both as a club and as individuals, and therefore, will use this minute in their records. ARE YOU GIVING ENOUGH?

This week is seeking at Technology a campaign for ten thousand dollars, a part of the million dollars which is being subscribed on this side of the Atlantic. American college students are being used in carrying on the war work of the Y. M. C. A. This work is receiving the support of all institutions of higher learning, and is recognized by the United States and other allied governments, not only as one of the most important factors in keeping up the morale of the men at the front and in all the camps of war, but in the temporary prisoner camps, but is the foremost influence which is working with a thought toward the inevitable and final reconstruction period to come after the war.

The goal of ten thousand dollars for the Institute to raise does not mean that that is all Technology men should give. It does not mean that the wain man should perform the mental division of the number of dollars by the number of students and then give just what is indicated by the quotient.

It means that ten thousand dollars is the least that such a great institution would show its worth.

We call your attention to the sums subscribed by other colleges, most of them with less students than Technology; we call your attention especially to the amounts indicated in the summer mirror.
