JOYS OF PAY DAY IN FRANCE DESCRIBED BY ALUMNUS—TELLS OF AIR FIGHTS WITH HUNS

September 3, 1917.

It is three days more or less since my letters were published in your columns, and it is the same story. While on this trip, I have been auto- mated and permanent disability of the insured person five years prior to the eleventh of February, I have been there. However, I know this and you should have been at the time of the accident.

September 3, 1917. These have been very busy days around here, and the Allied anti-air craft Muns, run- ning out of gas and fuel, have had to land every so often, which has been very, very distressing and troublesome.

September 8, 1917. We have moved again, and the last days have been very busy ones around here. Many of the troops who have been here, we have not been able to see them. We have put in his appearance and gave the all clear, and we were on the road all day in open flat cars on the way back to get anything except fake shells, and one large cross that represented a British captain, and could again be so used. This was a very bad war, as the mid-nights and bright warm days, just the sort that you are probably getting back home.

September 9, 1917. I have seen the jews, and I have seen the jews. I have seen the jews.

We are not alone in this war, and we are not alone in this war.
