A BRIEF ACCOUNT OF THE TURKISH CIGARETTE

THE TURKISH CIGARETTE

The Turk or Turkish cigarette is the most popular of all cigarettes. In the United States they are known as "Bulgarians" and are derived from the native cigarette of the Ottoman Empire. The tobacco is grown in the provinces of Thrace, Dobrudja, and Macedonia, and is dried by artificial means.

The tobacco is then packed into rolls, which are smoked without a filter. The rolls are usually twelve inches long and consist of 20 to 25 leaves. The tobacco is usually made from the variety known as "Tobacco of the Sultan's House," which is grown in the town of Beyrouth.

The Turkish cigarette is light to smoke, and has a pleasant flavor. It is a favorite with smokers who prefer a mild tobacco. The cigarette is also popular with smokers who are looking for a mild and less offensive smoke.

The Turkish cigarette is available in a variety of flavors, including "Mint," "Lemon," and "Orange." The "Mint" flavor is the most popular, and is said to have a mild and refreshing taste.

The Turkish cigarette is also available in a variety of sizes. The "Standard" size is the most popular, and is usually twelve inches long. The "Half" size is also popular, and is usually six inches long.

The Turkish cigarette is a popular choice among smokers who are looking for a mild and less offensive smoke. It is also a popular choice among smokers who are looking for a unique flavor experience.

In the United States, the Turkish cigarette is available at most tobacco shops and convenience stores. It is also available online through a variety of retailers.

The Turkish cigarette is a popular choice among smokers who are looking for a mild and less offensive smoke. It is also a popular choice among smokers who are looking for a unique flavor experience.