YOUNG men and women who wish to enter the War Service, whether in the Armed Forces or in the home industries, fall naturally into one of two categories. Some are young and eager, with the qualities and the drive which have enabled a great number of them to achieve success and distinction in the past and which enables many others to rise. Such young men and women are already answering the call; thousands of them have already been commissioned for the services of the country in the United States. But there are others, who are perhaps even more numerous, who are waiting for the opportunity to contribute their abilities and their drive to the cause of the nation.

By W. S. Chandler

(From the Chicago Tribune)

The new call of the War Service is a call to young men and women of every type. It is a call to those who have the drive and the enthusiasm to make the most of any opportunity, no matter how great or how small. It is a call to those who have the desire to serve their country, no matter what the sacrifices may be.

The War Service is not only for those who wish to fight on the battlefields of Europe. It is for those who wish to work behind the scenes, to help in the development of new industries, to help in the training of new laborers, to help in the making of new products.

The War Service is not only for those who wish to fight on the battlefields of Europe. It is for those who wish to work behind the scenes, to help in the development of new industries, to help in the training of new laborers, to help in the making of new products.