SPACIES AND LIES

German agents are everywhere, eager to gather scraps of news about our men, our ships, our munitions. It is still possible to get such information through to Germany, where thousands of these fragments of information are collected as secrets and are published in their newspapers and magazines, often very stupid, and would fail to get what he wants were it not for the efforts of our agents. But while the enemy is most industrious in trying to collect information, and his systems closest, he is not as thorough—indeed, often very stupid, and would fail to get what he wants were it not for the efforts of our agents. But while the enemy is most industrious in trying to collect information, and his systems closest, he is not as thorough—indeed, often very stupid, and would fail to get what he wants were it not for the efforts of our agents.
