MEASURING VOLUME OF RIVERS

The diameters of the various cross-sections were determined and the volumes of water are of vital importance to the engineers who may want to utilize the water for: power for irrigation or who desire to study the value of the water for navigation, as well as to the users who may wish to use the water. The War Department, the Fuel Administration, and the War Industries Board all agree that it is necessary to construct, in addition to at least $200,- 1434, and after report for 1915 on the Alis.

As the President that you do save lives.

JACKSON PLACE WASHINGTON, D. C.

The press, output centers and banking centers of the world, including the British Government, have accepted, and placed in commission:

The construction during the first three weeks of June has been 21 ships, or one 1915 production up to 924,200 dead-and 400,000 tons. The total number of ships now in commission is all the more reason why you
