ARMY OFFICER CRITICISM

The making of a and their concentration in centers of production and transportation has been hastened by increased demand. The increase has been most marked in the production of military equipment, but it has also been accompanied by an increased demand for many other products, such as foodstuffs, clothing, and fuel.

The lack of cooperation referred to in the preceding paragraph is due primarily to the lack of understanding on the part of the public. The public is not always aware of the needs of the Army and the military establishments. The lack of cooperation is also due to the fact that the public is not always willing to meet the cost of the supplies and services required by the Army.
