I N another column of this paper is an account of the activities of Dr. Machinist as the director of training of the War Department. This is an official statement of the progress of the work. There is also an announcement of the appointment of a new officer, Dr. Alfred B. Kent.

Dr. Machinist has added one more activity to his already large list. For the first time in the history of the country, the number of trained women exceeded the number of trained men. This is due to the increased number of women who are taking the work in their own homes. The number of trained women is now about 20,000, as compared with 10,000 trained men.

In addition to this, a new officer has been appointed to the Institute Committee. This officer is Dr. Alfred B. Kent, who has been active in the field of vocational training for many years.

The appointment of Dr. Kent is a step forward in the development of the Institute. He has shown himself to be a man of great ability and experience in the field of vocational training. He has been active in the field of vocational training for many years, and has shown himself to be a man of great ability and experience in the field.

The appointment of Dr. Kent is a step forward in the development of the Institute. He has shown himself to be a man of great ability and experience in the field of vocational training. He has been active in the field of vocational training for many years, and has shown himself to be a man of great ability and experience in the field.