REVOLUTION. But is it not alone that Germany craves. The claws not alone in money. If Germany wins she must look to us for that behind them is a great nation united in their support. Such an more than mere declarations. It requires long-sustained, sustained, co-operation.

No sacrifice can be greater than the soldiers', and those who are Americans love their country because their country loves them.

A small piece of a document containing text about the effects of the First World War on Germany and the necessity for sustained cooperation. The text discusses the idea that Germany's desire for revolution is not solely driven by economic motives, but also by the desire for a united nation. It emphasizes the importance of long-term cooperation rather than mere declarations of support. The text highlights the sacrifice of soldiers and suggests that Americans love their country because their country loves them. It also mentions the distribution of the Liberty Loan, which was a campaign to raise funds to support the war effort. The document concludes with a call to eat under and leave a surplus for the over-worked on foreign service.

ORIGINE MAN X AT THE DRAFT.

over thirty men have volunteered in the yard during the past week. They have been chosen from the men of the draft, all of the fellows who are serving, the most promising men, who will be the best helpers, receiving forty-five dollars a month, besides their own wages. They have been chosen after going through the same examination as all the others. The first thing that will be done is to shift the work around in the yard. The plant will be divided into departments and men, and intersperse ship repairs.

George T. McGovern, night foreman, has been appointed in charge of the night work and says that he is satisfied with the arrangements. The following is a list of the men appointed:

The Editor in Chief is always responsible for the opinions expressed in the editorial columns. and the Managing Editor for the matter which appears in the news columns.

W E are in the war to win: and therefore to put an end, we hope for all time, to the horrible threat levelled against civilisation by the German Government. We must win; we must have the rights of all nations to set forth as a condition of everything enlightened statesmanship, philanthropists, churchmen and patriots, including our own beloved forefathers. They have struggled for generations to hold the traditions of freedom and live in peace.

We must send our voting men to the battlefield with the firm assurance that behind them is a great nation united in their support. Such and such assurance will sustain and inspire them and make them invincible.

Perhaps some doubt that the German government planned, almost from the first, to make us pay the costs of this war. These cannot doubt that today, that it hopes to make us pay, and not alone in money. If Germany wins the most look to us, instead of having Europe as one to be capable of paying, and the German government must have to face the consequences of our own glory, that Germany's claims. Still it lags for pillage, for murder, and for rapine. woe.

By the rotation of events and the inevitable logic of right-wing, which就餐 to the right side of the cause, the United States has entered this war. And it will never turn back until it has given the world peace; not merely a cessation of conflict but a peace based on righteousness.
