The TECH
Saturday, November 2, 1918

PERSONALS

May we make this column interesting by sending in items of interest about students and men who have gone through the government schools. We have in mind to get for them some value to men overseas and we are trying to do something, however, unless friends, such as our readers, will help us to work up to send us the most important news of the right sort and print it for our graduated graduates.

Lieut. William F. Merritt '17 of Cambridge, Mass., was killed in action overseas in France, and buried there with full military honors.

Lt. William E. Fossell '17 of the High School in Cambridge, Mass., was killed in action overseas in France, and buried there with full military honors.

In CHARGE OF THIS ISSUE
Edward Allan Ash Oct. 29 ......... Aust. Night Editor

ONE OR THE OTHER

Terrorism has become a common practice in political circles, and it seems that there is little hope of a return to normalcy in the near future. The political situation is so volatile that it is difficult to predict what will happen in the next few months.

Dr. Paul C. Leonard '21, Chairman of the Board, Homer V. Hayes '20, General Manager; Maurice K. Bunright '21, Advertising Manager.

The following letter has been received Oct. 26, 1918, from 11. J. McLain '11, Ch.B. of Bridgeport, Conn.

Dear Colonel,

I feel it my duty in these days of war, to write to you in the hope that you will give your attention to the following matter.

In recent years, the number of cases of mental and nervous diseases has increased considerably. Many young men and women are suffering from various forms of mental disorders, such as depression, anxiety, and stress. These conditions can have serious consequences if left untreated.

I understand that there are many hospitals and clinics that offer therapy and counseling services. However, the cost of these services can be prohibitive for many individuals, especially those who are not covered by insurance.

I believe that the government should take an active role in ensuring that mental health care is accessible to all citizens. This can be achieved through a combination of public funding, training programs for mental health professionals, and increased awareness and education about mental health issues.

I urge you to consider this matter seriously and to take action to improve access to mental health care for all Americans.

Yours truly,

Dr. Paul C. Leonard
Chairman of the Board

THE TECH