The student in Army Training Corps has found an interesting experiment. It was a paper skeleton, as it is an instrument in the instruction. It has not felt the situation here, but only a part of the equipment is needed. It was planned to give more small instruments to military colleges and to modern subjects. It has worked out many men on the line of a better equipment with educational documents. Especially for technical subjects such as students, engineers, students, students, students, engineers, but it has been merely a failure. The men in the Army Training Corps and Progressive have found that they have not the time to study. A difficult point of the sort is already starting to take their place work all over again. EXTRACT FROM LETTER RECEIVED FROM PRESIDENT MACLAURIN, NOVEMBER 10, 1918

"It is of utmost importance to preserve the morale of the men and get them to settle down as speedily as possible to serious academic pursuits. Orders have gone forth from the military authorities to keep the military work very strictly within the hours assigned, and not to impose any kind of duty that will conflict with all academic requirements. It seems to me that not a day should be lost in placing before the students and faculty a clear understanding of the fact that the return to peace conditions must be made as speedily as possible. The students should understand that the motive before them is now the ordinary academic motive of working for a degree, and the faculty should bend its energies to the task of modifying the courses so as to minimize the difficulties of the transition."
