The only way of getting things across to the University Union is through the courtesy of men going over. We urgently ask that those who can take anything from a pair of socks to a trunk with them to get in touch with us.

Joseph Warren Homer, Jr.

Blown eighty miles south, landing for a few minutes on the north coast of France. He steered home by compass, landing within two miles of his destination. In August he was transferred from Falsbury, England, to a station near Edinburgh, Scotland, and was made third officer of one of the largest airships, a "Rigip" about 300 feet long, and since then had been flying out over the North Sea. Having established a reputation as an all-round naval airship pilot, he was last month sent to London Headquarters where, according to a letter written October 25, he was "taking a course in structure and design of airships," and hoping "to get on to the Staff and feeling "fit as a king."

He was the only son of Joseph Warren and Constance Homer of Brookline. He leaves his parents, two sisters, Mrs. Edwin S. Parker of Jamaica Plain, and Mrs. Richard W. Crocker of Brookline, and hosts of loving friends.

He held his course high over the restless deep,
His boon companion was the morning star
He watched, and now the stars his vigils keep-
His flight is winged to where all heroes are.
