CAPT. BRAINERD RELATES HIS WAR EXPERIENCES

Many of the new and interesting points of modern warfare were discussed, and a battle tactic adapted, at the Frederic Forel held in the “T” room this afternoon at the School of Technology.

The technicalities of the new battle system were outlined, and its advantages and disadvantages were discussed. The author of the plan, Captain Brainerd, described the sensations of a man going over the top. He said that in the general opinion, the line has been practically a failure. In fact, he preferred the old tactics because the Germans were more thoroughly trained. This system, he said, had never been so thoroughly tried, and the men were not used in this line of work. Therefore, the old methods were best.

At the end of the meeting, the band played a stirring song. The meeting ended with a display of the School Spirit, which is growing apace.
