A SELF-CONTAINED American dyestuff industry means, first of all, protection to America and American industries.

 Protection to the nation in time of war in that it furnishes the plants, the equipment and the intermediate products for the manufacture of high explosives and poisonous gases.

 Protection to our source of supply for the synthetic materials that are the chief mediators of medical science in relieving pain and in fighting disease.

 Protection to the textile, leather, paper, printing ink, paint and other dyestuff consuming industries predominating over one hundred million pounds and representing upwards of two and one-half billion dollars in invested capital.

 In developing and safeguarding, with every means at our disposal, a self-contained American dyestuff industry, American manufacturers are therefore striving and preserving the very keystone of our national and industrial independence.
