been made a Fellow of the Institute of Public Health. It was the plan of the late Dr. MacLaurin to exchange professors some time ago, but the plan was prevented from being carried out during the war and it has only just become possible. During Professor Sedgwick's absence his position will be filled by Professor Prescott. Professor Sedgwick is planning to return to this country in time for the fall term.

TRADITIONAL TECHNIQUE RUSH WILL COMMENCE JUNIOR WEEK ACTIVITIES

unless he has a sign-up which is paid in full. Then, every man in the contest must wear some kind of a rubber-soled shoe and finally paddles shall not be taken from persons who are on the ground. This last rule is to prevent the struggle from extending over too great an area, and will keep all of the combat on the roof of the hut.

Give Out 20 Paddles

After the rules have been announced to all, the competitors will line themselves around the border of the square. A shot from a gun will start them off. One minute later, a second shot will be the signal for the first paddle to appear and paddles will then come out in rapid succession until all have been disposed of. The paddles will not come out in numerical succession, so that no person can tell when the lucky numbered ones make their appearance. As soon as the rush is over, the possessors of paddles will be the first to secure their copies of the book, and those having paddles number one to four and twenty will secure free copies autographed by acting President Thomson. Those who have paddles numbered from four to nineteen will secure autographed copies of the issue. After these men have redeemed their paddles, all other persons who wish to get their copies may do so. The books will be disposed of in the lobby.

The book this year contains about 600 pages and is done in a black leather cover, upon which is stamped a distinctive design. Editor-in-Chief, R. H. Smithwick has the first copy, which he has checked over and he claims to be the "best ever." The books are all bound and are now being crated at the Boston Book Binding Company for shipment to the Institute. The book is essential by the same as previous editions in that it is composed of eight divisions; Officers of the Institute, Class Section, Senior Portfolio, Athletics, Fraternities, Honorary Societies, Publications, Grinds and Advertisements. In this year's edition, there are more than 250 advertisers.

SHOW SPENDS SUNDAY IN FINAL REHEARSAL

were made to fit the limitations of the set, but the men were thoroughly familiar with their lines and business. Everyone was highly enthusiastic and a number of funny accidents helped to maintain the good spirits that prevailed. F. D. Gage '22 seemed to have some trouble with his Egyptian costume and when told to turn his back to the audience, replied that he was sorry, but he did not feel sufficiently equipped. In spite of the efforts of the camel to remain a quadruped, conflicting orders from the coaches resulted in a remarkable tangle of the animal's limbs and it took the combined efforts of Philip Morris and Zira to restore its equilibrium.

The entire orchestra was present to render the musical numbers and incidental music for the ballet. Aside from the final marking of the scores, this organization is fully prepared. When the ballet had rehearsed carefully under Miss Tanner's direction, they completed their day's work by going through their act once without supervision. This year the ballet has a very definite plot.

Preparations Nearly Completed

Lunch was served at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and again during the night. The afternoon was consumed by a detailed rehearsal of the two acts, with all properties and scenic effects. The work of preparation has been carried so far already that most of the time was devoted to making the different units fit their surroundings smoothly. It is the opinion of the management that Tech Show will this year surpass previous productions in every way.

From now on seats for the two performances of Tech Show can be had only at the box office of the Arlington theater. However, tickets for Tuesday night are still to be had at the show office, Walker memorial. The show management requests that those who have not yet redeemed their ticket applications should see H. W. Smith '21, the treasurer, at the show office before Wednesday at 12 o'clock. The management also wishes to announce that standing room will be sold at all performances at $1.10.
