BREATHE there a Professor with soul so dead, that he can not appreciate the disadvantages under which a student is placed, and perhaps that he is not a type that you would wish to hold for a vacation? Surely, there are such specimens about the Institute if one is to judge by the number of quizzes which were "spring" on the Tuesday following Junior Week. Some of the more merciful instructors, it must be granted, laid aside their instruments of torture until the morning had nearly passed, in many cases the quizzes came in nine or ten o'clock sections. The dismayed expressions, quickly supplanted by looks of righteous indignation, appeared on the faces of the most innocent looking members of the class. The explanation was, "I don't understand the question," or "I'll try to do the best I can." It strikes me as a very good idea, advised to us all who are in the non-scholastic line, to teach professors the art of giving quizzes. We sit down to do our work, "teach professors the art of giving quizzes. We sit down to do our work, and their questions are so out of the way that we might as well try another one. The engineer and the clerk, the doctor, the lawyer, and the man in the street, "teach professors the art of giving quizzes. We sit down to do our work, and their questions are so out of the way that we might as well try another one. The engineer and the clerk, the doctor, the lawyer, and the man in the street, need not have to be soimihrly depressed. However, in this particular instance, some of them
