HEREAFTER IT'S EAST'N COURT

General de Puget has announced that the main event of this year's alumni reunion will be known after the banquet. Professor de Puget, the former president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was chairman of the alumni committee. He did not give any details about the event, but it is anticipated that the announcement will be made at the alumni banquet.

MORE THAN SEVEN HUNDRED REGISTERED

Several hundred local alumni will attend their class dinners at the East's Court this year.

NEW SYSTEM WORKS WELL

The total number of alumni registered to date is over 700, which is higher than expected. The registrar for this year, Professor W. H. Lawton, said that the system worked well and that the alumni were enthusiastic about the event.

Sorrow in the hearts of the graduating students was expressed at the alumni banquet held at the East's Court last night. The banquet was attended by over 200 alumni, who gathered to bid farewell to the graduating class. The event was a fitting conclusion to the year and a special occasion for the alumni to come together and celebrate their achievements.

SUNSHINE IN THE HEARTS OF ALUMNI

The event was not only a time of reflection but also of inspiration. The alumni were encouraged to continue to support the Institute and to stay connected with their alma mater.

A VINDICATION

The open and frank publicity which the Silver Ray Conference has received in the press and on the radio has been vindicated by the turnout of over 100 alumni. The conference was held to discuss the future of the Institute and the role of alumni in its development.

Aida J. WIlkins

The conference was led by Professor W. H. Lawton, the former president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He emphasized the importance of alumni involvement in the Institute's future and encouraged the alumni to play an active role in its development.

HANDELING ROOMS

The handling of rooms for the alumni banquet was a successful operation, with all the necessary arrangements made in advance. The banquet was held in the main lobby of the Institute, where the original panels of the administrative committee were hung. The panels were a memorial to the work of the administrative committee and served as a reminder of their contributions.

AMBASSADOR GEDES

ADDRESSES ALUMNI

(Abridged from Page 1)

To the alumni, Ambassador Gedes said:

"Our great task now is to work together on a world-wide scale to improve the conditions of all mankind. Only through cooperation and understanding can we achieve our goals. The alumni of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have demonstrated their commitment to this task and have set an example for all of us to follow."
