A history of crew for the last four years by Captain J. D. Jakobson, '21, is published for the benefit of the new candidates and to familiarize them with the popularity of this sport at the institute.

The in the fall of 1917, when the Annual Field Day Event was held, a large majority of the men were present. This on a number of reasons, none of which were of a very serious nature. This year the event was held in the early fall, and by the time it was held there were not as many men present. Therefore some of the entries were not as strong as they would have been if more men had been present. The business was postponed to a later date.

THINKS SEASON'S PROSPECTS GOOD

During the past week the mystery of the poster advertising the 1923 Ten Technique presented at the 1923 Tech Day was cleared up. The advertising committee, after a careful study of the possibilities of the poster, decided that it was the most effective means of advertising the event. The poster was printed on a large canvas and was hung on the walls of the campus.
