Architectural Department Sets Problem for Students

Professor William Emerson, head of the Department of Architecture, has announced that he will set as a problem for the students the design of a building suitable as a memorial tribute to Boston's fallen soldiers. There has been some discussion concerning the erection of a memorial to the men who served in the war, but the students have decided to concentrate on the design of a building.

That this year's production will be highly successful was manifested throughout the rehearsal in detail. In fact, it should be noted that the scenes were well rehearsed and the actors gave good performances.
