

SHERMAN ROGERS URGES OPENNESS

which would lead to a better understanding between the employer and employee. The fault was on the part of the employer. He has to root out the causes of discontent, because he is in the best position to do so. "Men are not radicals at heart, nor do they join the unions for the purpose of injuring their employer," said Mr. Rogers. He said that there were numerous instances where the national unions had withdrawn the charter of certain chapters which had begun to advocate violence. The men simply joined the unions for protection because under the present conditions they were suspicious of the good intentions of the employer. Mr. Rogers then said that the real answer to the labor question was for the employer to become better acquainted with his men. He said that when he joined the union it was with the express purpose of getting a chance to talk to the men and to tell them the truth of the situation. He found that few employers availed themselves of the chance to get acquainted with the men and that consequently, slight misunderstandings were greatly exaggerated. "You cannot sow arrogance and reap confidence. Reason and hatred will not mix," said Mr. Rogers in summing up the question. "The solution lies in a better understanding between all around."

GIVE NEW COURSES IN PUBLIC HEALTH

board will receive the certificate issued on completion of the work of the course as an evidence of advanced standing.

The new course is designed for teachers or for school nurses who have teaching responsibilities, and covers the methods of classroom teaching, project work and the development of health habits. It will include a discussion of the most recent and important developments in personal hygiene and public health, the co-ordination of the various phases of school hygiene and new methods of teaching as they have been developed both by Professor Turner and by other health workers in various parts of the country.

The work will begin on Wednesday, July 6 and will end on Friday, Aug. 12. In offering the course the prospectus of the summer session, which will be issued this week, takes note of the fact that normal schools in the past have not given courses to teachers in hygiene and health teaching, with the result that present methods of instruction in hygiene are very poor and in many cases the subject is entirely neglected. It also points out that school health work is frequently inefficient because of its various phases—medical supervision of the children, the teaching of physical training, the teaching of health habits, personal and public hygiene, the sanitation of the school building, and the health of the teaching force—have never been co-ordinated, unified, and relegated to their proper places by either the superintendents or the teachers.

Summer School Director Announced

The summer session of the Institute will begin this year on June 13 and end on Sept. 30. A new office has been created, that of director of the summer session, and Professor Charles F. Park, professor of mechanics, director of the mechanical laboratories and director of the Lowell Institute School for Industrial Foremen, has been chosen to fill it. The executive officers of the session, aside from Professor Park, are Ralph G. Hudson, assistant professor of electrical engineering; Addison F. Holmes, assistant professor of applied mechanics; and Howard B. Luther, assistant professor of civil engineering.

With the exception of four, all of the staff of the summer session are from the Institute's regular teaching force. An exchange has been effected with the University of California whereby Professor Harry W. Tyler, head of the department of mathematics of M. I. T., goes to Berkeley for the summer and Thomas M. Putnam, Ph. D., professor of mathematics in the University of California, comes to Technology to give a course in analytic geometry and calculus. Miles Walker, M. A., Sc. D., professor of electrical engineering in the Victoria University of Manchester, England, comes for special work in his subject and Charles L. Stone, assistant professor of psychology in Dartmouth College, will give a course in applied psychology, the first of its kind to be given in a summer session of M. I. T. It will present the various uses of psychology in industry, dealing especially with employment psychology and industrial relations and taking up incidentally advertising and salesmanship. Professor William M. Duffus of the college of business administration of Boston University, will offer courses in political economy.

PLANNED CONFERENCE

Eddy Conducted First Czech Student Meeting

When the new nation of Czecho-Slovakia was formed, and the educational problem was very dubious, the man who succeeded in organizing the first student conference in the country was Sherwood Eddy, who will deliver a series of lectures to the students of the Institute on April 12, 13, and 14. He will be prepared to apply much of his experience in this work to the American student problems in his addresses here.

In an ancient Hapsburg castle, Sherwood Eddy conducted his work. He was impressed with the character of the Czecho-Slovakian student as compared with the American type and said in a letter to the American Y. M. C. A. headquarters in New York, that he admired the frankness and precision of the students' work.

Leaving this nation, Eddy went on to other countries of Europe and the Near East studying the social and industrial problems of the recent unrest. In Egypt the attendance at his meetings rose from 2500 in Cairo, where two theaters were filled, to 6000 in Assiut. After entering the industrial centers of the Balkans and Italy, and the devastated areas of France and Belgium, he made a special study of the labor problem in England during the recent coal strike, and attended the Trade Union Congress at Portsmouth where he met many of the principal labor leaders of the nation. Embodied in the message, which Eddy is giving to the American colleges in his 1921 tour, are the facts drawn from his experience on the present industrial crisis in Europe and from that he draws a possible solution of the American industrial problem.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING SOCIETY HOLDS ELECTIONS

The election for officers in the Mechanical Engineering Society is now in progress and will continue today and tomorrow. They are being held early by request of the Institute Committee who desire to hold their election after those of the professional societies. The elections are for the offices of Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary, Treasurer, and three members on the governing board. All the offices must be filled by Juniors with the exception of one on the governing board which is filled by a Sophomore.

Plans are being completed for the annual banquet which will be held this year at the Hotel Somerset. The result of the elections will be announced at the banquet. As there were many members of the society who were unable to make the last trip to Brown and Sharpe at Providence, the society will hold another trip in the near future, probably within two weeks.

CORPORATION XV TO TAKE TRIP TO WALTHAM TODAY

To Receive Nominations for Next Year's Officers Tuesday

Corporation XV takes a trip today. The Boston Manufacturing Company, at Waltham, has opened its doors to the Institute financiers, so that they will be able to inspect the various steps in the manufacture of cotton cloth. All persons going on the trip will meet in the main lobby at 1 o'clock.

Nominations for officers of the Corporation will be received between Tuesday, April 5, and Friday, April 8, in Professor Dewey's office, Room 1-171. Candidates for the following offices are to be nominated: President, treasurer, secretary, two Senior directors, and two Junior directors. All nominating petitions must be signed by 10 men.

NO HOCKEY CAPTAIN ELECTED

At a meeting of the Hockey team Wednesday, the managers and members of the squad decided to postpone the election of a captain for next year until a later date.

STATE SCHOLARSHIPS TO BE DISCONTINUED

Expire In June—Many Apply for Other Scholarships

The contract between the Institute and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts expires this year and in consequence there will be no State scholarships at the Institute after the present school year. This contract cannot be renewed because the Constitution of Massachusetts makes it unconstitutional to do so.

The committee which has charge of the other scholarships held in trust by the Institute reports that there have been many applications this far and that they expect to exceed those of last year when there were 600 applications and 300 awards. Most of the scholarships are open to general competition but several of them have conditions attached which make it necessary for the student to take up a certain course or be a graduate of a certain preparatory school, and some of these have been accumulating for some time. In considering an application for a scholarship the committee requires the student to fill out a questionnaire and considers only those who have a perfect record in every subject.

The applications must be filed at the Information Office by May 7 for all except the Cambridge scholarship which may be filed during May or June. Students who wish information on scholarships or who wish to secure application blanks, can secure the same from members of the committee.

M. I. T. A. A. TO ELECT SOON

Both the M. I. T. A. A. and T. A. C. elections are to be held in the near future. No definite reports have come in from the teams whose seasons are finished but Treasurer Brokaw states that the new system of financing has been satisfactory and has saved money.

HARVARD ASSEMBLES NATION'S STUDENTS

Harvard No Longer Snobbish

Mr. R. Wormser of Harvard, the secretary of the organizing committee, addressed one of Mr. Pipkin's classes on the subject. According to Mr. Wormser, one of the main influences the meeting will have will be to lessen the prejudice that is felt towards Harvard. President Lowell once said that Harvard must not dilute its spirit by connections with other colleges, that it must go on living up to its own ideals. That at least part of the present student body is not in sympathy with this idea, but on the contrary will go out of its way to welcome other colleges, is evident. If the only thing the meeting accomplishes is to break down the feeling that Harvard is snobbish and aloof and that it sets itself above other colleges, the University will be repaid for the trouble incurred by the elevation of its standards as seen throughout the country. As Technology seems to particularly feel this, it behooves a large number of men from the Institute to attend, and clear up the misunderstanding between the neighbors.

Hope to Accomplish More

But it is hoped and expected that more than this will be accomplished. The program of action as outlined is to organize and foster liberal groups in other colleges, to furnish assistance to these groups, to induce persons of influence to devote a portion of their time to lectures in colleges, and to organize regional, national, and ultimately international conventions of liberal groups. The word "liberal" herein must not be taken in its popular sense, but as indicating "open minded thinkers." Politically, conservatives, radicals, and all between, will be represented.

Mr. Lippman will give the opening address. Then will follow the fixing of the organization of the club. At 6 o'clock an Old Fashioned New England Supper will be served, at two dollars a plate. All profits from this will be devoted to the relief of fellow students in the poverty-stricken lands across the sea. The subject of the evening is "The Collegian Looks at the World." Prominent men and women will address the meeting on this subject, and each will be followed by a brief student reply. Reports of Committees will be held Sunday, and at 3:30 President H. N. MacCracken or Vassar will start his closing address. An hour later tea will be served.

The need of bringing the students and opinions of different colleges together was felt at Harvard about a year ago. This is the final expression of this sentiment. Mr. Wormser is particularly anxious to secure the co-
