According to Ed Cunningham, Marshal Foch will travel back to France with some new ideas of national defence. It seems that his latest idea is to discharge the entire French army and guard the border with a corps of trained pigskin chasers. He seems to believe that the Germans will have a healthy respect for their methods of attack.

And for that matter, why doesn't the Institute Committee organize an army of fresh football players to put a stop to the worship of the goddess Fatima in the magnificent corridors of our beloved Institute.

SWIMMERS CLOSE WEEKS PRACTICE

More Veterans Report and Outlook is Brighter

The Beaver swimming squad is settling down after its first week of practice, and starting in on the rather long training period in preparation for its meets after Christmas.

As yet, Coach Alec Southerland says, it is too early to say anything concerning the men who have turned out. He has taken no times, and is purposely trying to develop the form of the men, without taking much stock of speed until later in the season.

Among the veterans of last year's varsity who have returned, is Bert Weber, who was Clark Greene's racing partner in the 220 yard dash last season. Greene is not here this year, having been graduated last June. Much is expected of Weber for the coming season, and with the help of Dave Evans, one of the promising Sophomore candidates, the Institute should be well represented in the 220.

Report Good Relay Men

C. L. Dunn and Nip Marsh, also of last year's freshman team are going to be strong contenders for the relay. It is rumored that both men have cut their times about a second in the fifty yard dash. E. S. Taylor and L. P. Botting also deserve watching in this event.

Last Wednesday's practice was held in the Cambridge "Y" tank, due to a slight misunderstanding with the Boston "Y" in regard to holding practice there on Wednesdays. The Cambridge tank is slightly smaller than the Boston tank, but well adapted for managing a squad because of its size. The practice on Friday was held in the Boston "Y," as today's will be.

At Henniger's first plunge the swimming pool started out of the window. Managers are now considering what should be done. Miller suggests that they coach the team from the balcony.

Cates wandered near the diving board. Purinton suffered the losses.

Judging from the popularity of the shallow end of the tank, it seems that the whole frosh class is trying to get out of Frank's weekly wiggling classes.

The frosh ran over the Belmont freshman course Saturday to determine the team that will enter the freshman intercollegiate next Monday. They have improved their already good showing.

It is to be remembered that Technology men gained the first five places in the Harvard-Technology freshman run, and their running Saturday showed a decided improvement over all past performances. So they ought to bear watching next Saturday.

The Beavers feel the loss of Anderson, who has been declared ineligible according to a ruling which bars college graduates.

Everyone was surprised to see Flanders beat Sanborn. We hope it was Flanders' fault, not Sanborn's.

The cross country team felt the loss of Anderson who has been ruled ineligible. He had been running well and should have been able to place better than 37 which the last scoring man of the team added last Saturday.

TECHNOLOGY SECOND IN N. E. I. C. A. A. RUN

University of Maine Springs Surprise and Wins N. E. Championship

ART FLANDERS '22 FOURTH

The New England Cross Country Championship passed from the Institute's possession, when the University of Maine won the N. E. I. C. A. A. Cross Country Run held last Saturday morning. The Beavers were primed for close competition from the Bates College runners who had Raymond Buker as their leader. Both team and individual championships changed hands, however, as Buker was nosed out of first place by W. S. Hart, the Bowdoin College star. The time of 28 min., 28 sec. was good considering the condition of the course.

After being defeated in the Maine championships, held but a week ago, by Bates College, the University of Maine staged a surprising come-back when they walked off with the New Englands. Their first man only finished sixth, but they came in thick and fast after that. Their team score totaled 65. The Engineers came in second with a total of 72 while Bates was only able to place third with 89 counters.

Flanders First Institute Man

Captain Elmer Sanborn did not quite come up to expectations when he drew down fifth place. This was more than made up for, however, by the running of Flanders, who managed to beat the Beaver leader and drew down fourth place. When Bob Hendrie finished eighth and L. H. Poor, the fourth Technology runner, came in eighteenth, the Engineers' prospects of winning seemed strong. After Poor they came in thick and fast and Rus Robertson, although not very far behind his teammate, only finished 37th.

Due to rain a few days before the course was not very fast. Mud over parts of the course made the going hard for the runners. At the start the teams were lined up side by side, each team being in column with its captain in front. This much compacted the field at the start and made the initial fight for positions more strenuous.

The first ten runners to finish were: 1—W. S. Hart, Bowdoin; 2—R. B. Buker, Bates; 3—J. Doherty, Tufts; 4—A. L. Flanders, M. I. T.; 5—E. E. Flanders, M. I. T.; 6—W. K. Nerrick, U. of Maine; 7—A. Mercer, Colby; 8—R. E. Hendrie, M. I. T.; 9—Joe Doherty, Tufts; 10—C. McKennan, Maine.

Team Scores: University of Maine, 65; Mass. Inst. of Tech., 72; Bates, 89; N. H. State, 111; Tufts, 128; Bowdoin, 144; Williams, 167; Colby, 204; Brown, 208; Boston College, 241; Holy Cross, 254.

THE TECH REPEATS LAST YEAR'S SPLENDID VICTORY

Victory, moral victory, again repaid the efforts of THE TECH's football team Friday morning, when, on Tech Field, they defeated Technique by the overwhelming score of 9-9. Notwithstanding the fact that all touchdowns were scored by the opponents, THE TECH's team showed splendid spirit throughout the game. Captain "Mouse" Jackson's 40-yard fumble in the first quarter was almost as great a factor in the conquest as was Charlie Toll's backward run when he crossed his own goal line amid the thunderous yells of both sides. THE TECH played a thinking game from the first, wearing out the "Sniquers" by careful and frequent substitutions. Both teams adopted the "eye for an eye" policy, and Tommy was gunning for Bantam Brantingham from the kick-off to the final whistle. Bantam, however, seemed to be immune; so immune that while entirely surrounded by TECH players after a kick, he managed to scoop up the pigskin and sneak around the back way for 35 yards worth of gridiron.

The game was marked by long end runs. It seemed that almost anyone could run with the ball toward one or the other of the goals, but that it took more skill to tackle than was possessed by any of the players on either team. Hence, the man with the ball, even when chased by half a dozen line-men (keeping up appearances) was really as safe from being tackled as though he was on the cinder track.

The real hit of the morning's activity, though, was revealed after the game, when the weary combatants hid them to the cider barrel and regaled themselves with deep draughts of the nut brown beverage. Why the newspapermen went down to the locker room, and left the cider barrel to the "Sniquers, and what it was that Al Browning produced and passed around, will probably never be known to any but the members of the team.

Bill Fielding, whose experience with THE TECH runs through about 38 of the 40 years' continuous news service, was on deck throughout the game, rooting for the journalists.

A Victory dinner, at which the "Snique" celebrated its physical, THE TECH, its moral victory, followed the game. The speeches were short, and didn't mean anything.
