The recent enthusiastic receptions accorded to Marlbor Port by American institutions, especially Harvard University, as well as by Harvard University in particular have aroused in many of us unspoken emotions of national pride. It is, of course, a question of the national pride, or rather the tradition, of the Harvard University alumni to do something for educational institutions of this great University. Consequently we cannot be content with empty words.

An opportunity to delve into the underlying philosophy of Harvard University in particular is not to be missed, and there are many of us that want to get acquainted with us.

THE STUDENT LOUNGE

For some time now it has been apparent that the Student Lounge in Building 2 is overtaxed at the noon hour. Chairs and tables are taken by almost every student and those who do not have lunch at the Student Dining Hall, or do not want to pay for their lunch at the Student Dining Hall, congregate in the Student Lounge and thereby destroy the opportunity to have a meal in peace. Consequently we are planning to have a Student Lounge in Building 2.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of THE TECH:

Reference was recently made by the enthusiasm of their reform to the fact that their Reform Club has been successful in getting rid of smoking. It is true that the Reform Club has done this, but it is not the case that the Reform Club has done this by banning smoking. It is the case that the Reform Club has done this by having a good time. It is true that the Reform Club has done this, but it is not the case that the Reform Club has done this by banning smoking. It is the case that the Reform Club has done this by having a good time.

The recent enthusiastic receptions accorded to Marlbor Port by American institutions, especially Harvard University, as well as by Harvard University in particular have aroused in many of us unspoken emotions of national pride. It is, of course, a question of the national pride, or rather the tradition, of the Harvard University alumni to do something for educational institutions of this great University. Consequently we cannot be content with empty words.

An opportunity to delve into the underlying philosophy of Harvard University in particular is not to be missed, and there are many of us that want to get acquainted with us.

THE STUDENT LOUNGE

For some time now it has been apparent that the Student Lounge in Building 2 is overtaxed at the noon hour. Chairs and tables are taken by almost every student and those who do not have lunch at the Student Dining Hall, or do not want to pay for their lunch at the Student Dining Hall, congregate in the Student Lounge and thereby destroy the opportunity to have a meal in peace. Consequently we are planning to have a Student Lounge in Building 2.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of THE TECH:

Reference was recently made by the enthusiasm of their reform to the fact that their Reform Club has been successful in getting rid of smoking. It is true that the Reform Club has done this, but it is not the case that the Reform Club has done this by banning smoking. It is the case that the Reform Club has done this by having a good time. It is true that the Reform Club has done this, but it is not the case that the Reform Club has done this by banning smoking. It is the case that the Reform Club has done this by having a good time.

The recent enthusiastic receptions accorded to Marlbor Port by American institutions, especially Harvard University, as well as by Harvard University in particular have aroused in many of us unspoken emotions of national pride. It is, of course, a question of the national pride, or rather the tradition, of the Harvard University alumni to do something for educational institutions of this great University. Consequently we cannot be content with empty words.

An opportunity to delve into the underlying philosophy of Harvard University in particular is not to be missed, and there are many of us that want to get acquainted with us.

THE STUDENT LOUNGE

For some time now it has been apparent that the Student Lounge in Building 2 is overtaxed at the noon hour. Chairs and tables are taken by almost every student and those who do not have lunch at the Student Dining Hall, or do not want to pay for their lunch at the Student Dining Hall, congregate in the Student Lounge and thereby destroy the opportunity to have a meal in peace. Consequently we are planning to have a Student Lounge in Building 2.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of THE TECH:

Reference was recently made by the enthusiasm of their reform to the fact that their Reform Club has been successful in getting rid of smoking. It is true that the Reform Club has done this, but it is not the case that the Reform Club has done this by banning smoking. It is the case that the Reform Club has done this by having a good time. It is true that the Reform Club has done this, but it is not the case that the Reform Club has done this by banning smoking. It is the case that the Reform Club has done this by having a good time.

The recent enthusiastic receptions accorded to Marlbor Port by American institutions, especially Harvard University, as well as by Harvard University in particular have aroused in many of us unspoken emotions of national pride. It is, of course, a question of the national pride, or rather the tradition, of the Harvard University alumni to do something for educational institutions of this great University. Consequently we cannot be content with empty words.

An opportunity to delve into the underlying philosophy of Harvard University in particular is not to be missed, and there are many of us that want to get acquainted with us.

THE STUDENT LOUNGE

For some time now it has been apparent that the Student Lounge in Building 2 is overtaxed at the noon hour. Chairs and tables are taken by almost every student and those who do not have lunch at the Student Dining Hall, or do not want to pay for their lunch at the Student Dining Hall, congregate in the Student Lounge and thereby destroy the opportunity to have a meal in peace. Consequently we are planning to have a Student Lounge in Building 2.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor of THE TECH:

Reference was recently made by the enthusiasm of their reform to the fact that their Reform Club has been successful in getting rid of smoking. It is true that the Reform Club has done this, but it is not the case that the Reform Club has done this by banning smoking. It is the case that the Reform Club has done this by having a good time. It is true that the Reform Club has done this, but it is not the case that the Reform Club has done this by banning smoking. It is the case that the Reform Club has done this by having a good time.