SWIMMERS WILL MEET ARMY FOR FIRST TIME

Boxing and Swimming Teams Schedule West Point for Meets

TANK MEN TO HAVE TIME TRIALS

West Point has definitely added to the list of colleges and institutions that the Technology swimming team will meet this winter. It is the first time that relations between the two marines have been resumed in regard to swimming, and it is looked forward to with great interest as a very friendly relations between West Point and Technology in the future, the swimmers say.

The boxing team has also scheduled a match with the West Point team for the first time in its existence, and likewise has received a most cordial invitation for the meet, and a very good chance to display its fighting

Army. No Strong Team

The Army team has been one of the strongest of the eastern teams in the last few years, and will be so easy for the Institute to take when they come together at West Point.

Time trials will be held today for the first time since practice has started. The men that have not already had their tryouts for the squad will have their times taken also, and they will be a most important factor in deciding whether the man is to be cut or not. The tryouts will take place just before the Christmas holidays and just after the holiday so as to see how the men have held up in training.

A promising freshman flank man in the Army, a native of the Empire State, was out and completed his team successfully.

YALE SQUAD SUCCESSFUL

Unofficial figures given out by Yale University officials indicate that the football team had a record season, as far as attendance and enthusiasm is concerned. Among the students and alumni who were present at the Yale-New Haven game last week the press estimated that the gates were full.

The press receipts will amount to over $300. The Yale-Penn game, of course, topped the attack as far as attendance is concerned. The marines were out in New Haven for 7,050 people while the Yale-Tech crowd at Cambridge drew 55,000 spectators, and the Brown game in the BowL 68,000.

TIREX (ALL RUBBER) PORTABLE CORD

A large proportion of portable tool troubles are cord failures. TIREX wears longer than other cords and keeps the tools in operation. It always comes out the same, does not kink or tangle. Some repairs, more than four times as long as flexible covered cords.
