Hank Pierce, track captain in '19, was one of the most forceful speakers at the track candidates' meetings Monday afternoon. One of the points that he made was the big part points in the field events play in Technology's totals at the New Englands.

According to Hank, places in the high jump, pole vault, shot put, hammer, and last year in the discus, have been a mighty big factor in the Institute team's string of five consecutive wins and he believes the field men deserve a good deal more credit than they've been allotted.

The javelin will be hurled for the first time this year in the dual meet with Harvard, and upon the outcome a great deal depends. At present, granting the Beaver a first and the Crimson second and third with the spear, Coach Frank Kanaly figures the University will win the meet by six points.

Looking over the field, George Boli seems to have the edge over the other Engineer javelin men, though the only basis for judging is the past records of the competitors. George threw the timber a matter of 140 feet several years ago, which is ten or 15 feet more than is usually needed to place. George was kept out of competition last year by a weak wrist but seems in fine fettle this spring.

Actual Crew Practice Starts with Two Boats on River

Boli, who is a senior, is also doing quite well with the shot, being the only Institute man putting the weight over 40 feet now.

One of the most promising developments of the indoor season was the really exceptional work shown by Russ Ambach, the hurdler. The track team has been very short on candidates for the barrier clearing posts, Captain Yard Chittick being the only available regular.

Russ has been in some warm competition, one of the chief warmers being Champion Earl Thompson, whose time for the 45 yard hurdle event is usually around six seconds flat. Whitney and Hauers of Harvard are two runners whom Ambach will face in the climactic meet on May 6.

With several events being run at the same time, the Inter-collegiate gym meet, dated for March 31 in Walker, ought to be a good deal faster moving than most of the dual competitions. Since the crack Navy team, and several outfits of like caliber will be on the floor, Captain Nesmith Thompson's gymnasts are looking for an interesting, rather than triumphant, evening.

The Princeton basketball team certainly surprised the University of Pennsylvania five last Saturday night in Weightman Hall, Penn's own floor, winning by a six point margin. The Jersey quintet and the Red and Blue are now tied for first in the eastern college league. The playoff will be contested at Princeton.

Yesterday afternoon the vanguard of the Sophomore baseball team put in its first appearance, practice being held in front of the hangar. Under the direction of Earle Bates, last year's captain, several candidates for the pitching staff were given their first warm up. Phil Robinson, Guy Canfield, and Will Blaisdell showed some of the best stuff and when in mid season form promise to be quite effective.

COLLEGE GYM TEAMS WILL VISIT WALKER

First Intercollegiate Meet at Technology Dated for March 31

NAVY ENTRANTS FAVORED

The Intercollegiate Gym Meet is to be held in Walker Gym this year, on March 31, at 7:30 o'clock. The indications are that there will be in the neighborhood of fifty entrants, which is expected to draw quite a crowd, the admission is to be 75 cents. The following colleges had definitely entered: Annapolis, Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, University of Pennsylvania, Haverford; the Universities of New York and Chicago may also be represented, though at present nothing definite about their entries is known. The events to be held are the horizontal bar, parallel bar, flying rings, horse, tumbling, and clubs. There is also to be a competition for the best all-round gymnast, in all events.

First Intercollegiate Here
 This is the first time that the Intercollegiate have been held here; at Princeton, where they were held last year, the Navy men had the best of it, and from their record so far this year, it looks as if they might lead the field again. They have entered eleven men in the various events, as well as two in the all-round event, and they ought to show up very well. The entries for Technology have not as yet been chosen, but Manager Porter states that more news will be available shortly. More than one event is to be run off at a time so that it will not be a long drawn-out affair as is often the case.

TRACK CANDIDATES OPEN OUTDOOR SEASON

vard dual meet in the stadium last year.

Coach Kanaly Has Message

Frank Kanaly, under whose leadership Technology has found its place on the athletic map, was the last to address the gatherings. He began with informing the new men of the rules and regulations of the track team, making known to them what was expected if they signed up for the squad. He asked all men taking up track work to go into the matter seriously and give their loyalty to the team. Only in this way could the Institute make a creditable showing against other teams, he said. Training tables and such adjuncts to practice are missing here at Technology, but each man is expected to confine himself solely to track work and his studies during the season. Owing to the stand taken in the matter by the advisory council a firmer attitude is to be taken this year and any violations of the rules laid down will mean dismissal from the squad. An exception is to be made during Junior Week from Monday afternoon after the Interclass Games, until after the Junior Prom, though men are asked not to "go the limit" even then.

Technology's Track Schedule

April 17—Interclass Games, Tech Field
 April 28-29—Penn Relay Carnival, Philadelphia
 May 6—Dual Meet, Harvard, Stadium
 May 13—Dual Meet, Navy, Annapolis
 May 19-20—N. E. I. C. A. A. Championship, Worcester
 May 26-27—I. C. A. A. A. Championship, Stadium

Coach Kanaly declared that a win over Harvard is the real goal of the season. In the last five years Technology has won only once in these dual meets but the scores have always been close, the crimson usually having the edge in the field events, with the track competition about even. This year there is a fair chance for victory if the men will only work hard enough. Frank here scored the fact that for all of the average Technology man's disparagement of Harvard, the University turns out fighting teams that never seem to know when they're licked. Nervousness on the part of Beaver teams has permitted the crimson to win even with somewhat inferior teams in the past and it is this tendency that is to be counteracted this year.

Calls for Men in Field Events
 Bawden, Bossert, Spitz, Bardes, and MacMahon, all point winners in the New Englands last year, are lost for the coming season so that more than ever the Engineer chances depend upon the field events. Coach says that Boston College is trying to develop a creditable combination in the field and if she does add this to her acknowledged strength in track, Technology will have to hustle to maintain her laurels.

Ever since 1917, and in spite of some hairbreadth finishes, the Institute has won the New England track and field championship. Naturally this year's track team intends to continue the good work but Kanaly is voicing a warning that the result is by no means certain.

Coach Kanaly especially urged the freshmen to come out and make the yearling aggregation a good one for on it the varsity depends for filling next year's vacancies and only trained men can meet this need. The defeats suffered by the 1925 team in the indoor meets were not disheartening, he said, and the chances for a much better showing on the cinders is looked for. But the yearlings are particularly weak in candidates for the field events. To date not a single freshman has gone out for the pole vault, while the high jump and the weights need more men.

Candidates Sign up for Season
 At the close of the meetings the men present signed up for the season, so that a record of all candidates may be kept. Any men who did not attend Monday but who desire to compete for a place on the team should sign up in the track house before next Monday.

Work for the season begins this afternoon and with over two hundred men signed up Tech Field will be a busy place for the next few weeks. Owing to the danger of practicing with the javelin, candidates for this event must get in their training before 2.30 o'clock but work for all other men will not begin until that hour.
