

HARVARD VARSITY OWES OPEN WATER WIN TO POWER OF FINAL STROKES

Freshman Ballplayers Tie Series Trimming Sophomores, 5 to 4, in Well Played Extra Inning Contest

Captain Phil Carrier's freshman baseball team pounded in two runs in the twelfth inning of the hottest extra inning contest seen on Tech Diamond these many moons, Saturday afternoon, which was just enough to hang a 5-4 defeat on the Sophomore ballplayers and even the interclass series at one all.

When the frosh came to bat in the twelfth the score stood at three apiece, in which figures it had been reposing since the '24 outfit scored in the seventh frame. George Balcom, lead off man, was the first batter to face Kennett and he wandered back to the bench a minute later the sixth of Wall's strike out victims. Brown got to first and he and Carrier carried across the winning runs on a Soph error and a hit by Lumb.

Sophomores Also Score

The '24 fighters didn't let the fresh men get the verdict without another score, scoring another run in their portion of the inning. The head of the batting order was up, and Manning rapped out a hit, which put Ed Ingram, freshman pitcher, in a difficult situation. He pulled himself out of it, however, by striking out Clark and Robertson. Walterskirchen came through with the hit that drove Manning in with the final score.

A big part of the credit for the victory goes to Ed Ingram, who performed on the mound for the frosh. He whiffed nine men compared to Kennet's six. Ed was a trifle wild issuing four passes and hitting two men but he was always steady in the pinches and seems to be a big addition to the '25 string of pitchers. This was the first game that Cook did not do the throwing for the frosh.

Fielding Prevents Homers

The fielders on both sides pulled some mighty clever stops frequently nabbing ground balls, with a one hand stab, which, if lost would have gone for a home run on the fast outfield. Robinson '24, in right, made one particularly good play in one of the early innings and Manning also has some clever work at shortstop to his credit. The Soph fielding had a shade on that of the freshmen.

Earle Bates's team started the action in the second after both sides had been retired without much trouble in the first, the freshmen going down on three infield drives. Two men were out when Robinson got a hit and Dunksersley was bumped on the foot by a pitched ball. Kennett's long wallop scored both of them.

Frosh Take Lead

The freshmen remained inactive until the fifth inning. Lumb got to first through a boot by Manning, both Wheeler and Valdes connected for hits and a pass to Balcom and another safety by Brown resulted in three runs. Captain Bates chucked Captain Carrier's drive to first for the third out.

Dunksersley got his base on balls in the seventh and tied the score on Manning's smack. Bill pilfered second but stayed there while Bates sent a fly to Shortstop Brown and Clark grounded out via the same spot. All was then calm until the fireworks in the last inning.

The Sophomore nine overwhelmed the freshmen in the first contest of the series but things look pretty even now and the full five games will probably be required to settle the affair. The score:

A game like Saturday's is a mighty good thing for baseball at the Institute. It was tight hard baseball all the way and surely had its full quota of thrills.

Gilbert Fletcher, freshman coach

down at first, had a very steady line of chatter, though he needed it to drown out the constant chorus of reassurance pouring from Walters and the rest of the Soph inner cordon.

Speaking of chatter, Bill Robinson '24, right fielder, has little to learn. He was a great success in the third base box and his very solicitous "Want a runner" when Dunksersley was hit on the shoe by a pitched ball brought a laugh.

Professor Passano, an interested spectator throughout most of the game, has evidently had experience at the pastime since he returned the ball to the diamond in great style when it rolled to his feet in the fourth.

Jack Kellar, once New England's discus champ, umpired and though he had a couple of tough ones to pick saw most of them to everybody's satisfaction.

Junior Architects Retain Baseball Championship

The 1923 Architect's baseball team, champions last year, retained their title Saturday afternoon by defeating the Senior nine in an extra inning contest by a score of 10-9. The '22 combination had eliminated 1924 by shutting them out in a preliminary game, 17-0.

The conflict between '22 and '24 was a slaughter, with the Senior ballplayers scoring in every inning. The brawl was called in the fourth since another game was on the cards and there seemed to be slight hope of ever calling a halt on the '22 procession over the plate. Ellsworth, the best Senior hurler, was removed so that he would be in top form for the battle with the Junior champs. The Sophomores couldn't touch Shotwell, who took his place.

Ceremonies Observed

Professor William Emerson opened the second game with the formalities befitting a championship contest by throwing the first ball out to Clarence Chamberlain '23, pitcher. The game was scheduled to last only five innings, but since the score stood at six all another frame was necessary. In the sixth inning '23 landed on Ellsworth for four tallies. The Seniors came back with three runs in their half which left the title in the hands of the Juniors. Paul Brown's home run won the game for '23.

INSTITUTE SCORE DOUBLED IN THE ANNAPOLIS MEET

In the 220 John Poole again met Marshall, with whom he had run practically a dead heat in the century. The two men ran neck and neck until Poole's final burst carried him to his second victory of the afternoon. Smith finished fast but only made a close fourth.

Captain Chittick, with his knee injured in Friday's practice, ran a dead heat with Russ Ambach for third in the low hurdles, two Navy entrants racing to the first two positions. All the Beaver men were bothered by the barriers being on a turn. Hershey fell after making a fast start.

The Navy predominated in the field events, breaking records in the discus, javelin and broad jump. Three Navy sent the discus sailing beyond the Technology record. Boli led both Tonon and Dexter.

Nimick furnished a surprise by taking five points in the shot, pushing it one foot further than he has previously done it this season. Tonon and Boli were close together but were unable to score in the javelin throw. The party was wonderfully entertained at Bancroft Hall.

One hundred-yard dash—Won by Poole M. I. T.; second, Marshall, Navy; third, Webster, M. I. T. Time—10 3-5s.

Two hundred and twenty-yard dash—Won by Poole, M. I. T.; second, Stryker, Navy; third, Marshall, Navy. Time—22 3-5s.

Boston University Theologians Clean Up Field Day Meet

The Boston University School of Theology won the annual B. U. Field Day Track Meet last Friday afternoon on Tech Field by a one point margin over the College of Business Administration, 50-49. The College of Liberal Arts trailed, taking its only win in the mile.

Hal Cutbill ran in the quarter and half mile, taking the events for the theologians by an easy sprint at the finish after dogging the leaders throughout the race. He did not run in the mile, which he could probably have taken as well, as the winning time in that event was only 4m. 52 2-5s.

Girls' Races Prove Attraction

The event which probably attracted the most attention was the girls' 50 yard dash and a Shuttle Relay race for girls, between the freshmen and Sophomores and Juniors. The freshmen girls won easily.

The track events were preceded with the annual review and demonstration by the B. U. R. O. T. C. Unit. A sham battle was staged, infantry, machine guns, trench mortars and airplane cooperating.

In the baseball game that was played directly after the meet, Boston University defeated the Mass. Aggies by a score of 6 to 4.

WIGGS AND SHOTWELL WIN ARCHITECTS TENNIS TITLE

The doubles team, H. R. Wiggs and D. R. Shotwell, won the tennis tournament at the Architects Picnics Saturday afternoon. A series of single set matches left the winning pair and G. P. Brookfield and D. J. Luykx. Wiggs and Shotwell won the final in straight sets.

HARVARD BOATS ROW TO VICTORY

Pont at 5 in the Engineer boat caught a crab. At the bridge both were rowing at a pitch of about 34, with Harvard half a length in the lead.

This seemed to be a sort of a signal for the Harvard crew. From then on till the end their lead was gradually increased, until at the finish there was three lengths of open water. The time for the junior varsity race was a second faster than that of the varsity. The weather grew rougher as the afternoon progressed, however, and, although both had a head wind to contend with, the seconds were rowing under slightly better conditions.

After Price at 5 in the Technology boat caught a crab the freshmen were out of it. For the first half mile the three crews had held about even, but the Engineers had dropped back a length before they recovered. This was increased to a length and a half at the Harvard bridge, the two Crimson shells holding about even. Another length had been added when they passed Walker Memorial dock. The watermanship of the Beaver frosh was generally ragged at the end. Kullman at 4 was a new man in the boat, and had not learned to put his back into it. The stroke was raised at the end but the Harvard advantage was not cut down. The Crimson first freshman shell floated in an easy winner by nearly two lengths over the other Harvard boat. Technology trailed, five lengths further behind.

The freshmen ran off with the shell that the junior varsity crew intended to use in their race. It had been planned to tow the boat back again in time for the next race, but it did not arrive in time and Technology was forced to recourse to an old shell.

Surprise was expressed in some quarters that Technology should come so close to beating Harvard in the varsity race. A win would have put the Institute in "Class A" as far as rowing is concerned. Another opportunity will be presented to break Columbia on the Harlem this Saturday.
