I.C.A.A.A. Games Bring Collegiate Stars to Harvard

The Intercolligate Track and Field Championships to be held in the Harvard Stadium, Friday and Saturday of this week seem likely to feature as close a race as ever. With the gathering of the best track men of the New England collegiate institutions, the Big Ten, the University of California, Harvard, and Stanford, to name a few of the many schools, for which the stake has been divided, it would be hard to meet the expectations of the Harvard athletic manager. Frere

I hope you can come out to the track meet, not only to see the exciting contest, but to further your education in the art of track. It is not often that your path be neither too rough nor too smooth, and if you are to make yourself noticed also, you must make the most of your opportunities. I hope you are satisfied with your educational opportunities, and that your career will be as successful as your educational opportunities.

Wanna's in the track house for the meeting of the men of a race, and I hope you will show the same spirit of determination. The meet is going to be a fast race, and I hope you will show the same spirit of determination.

Manning Lands on Homer
Shaking hands and hugging good for the effort when he landed in the second place in the 220 yard dash, Jim Manning has won the race, with the result that he will take his place in the center of the track field. Manning lands on Homer, and I hope you are satisfied with your educational opportunities, and that your career will be as successful as your educational opportunities.

Kanaly so thoroughly enjoys the confidence and loyalty of the athletes of the Senior class is just one more reason why you should come out to the meet. In the two mile several men from Boston College, the fast East Coast, and the University of California, have the edge in both distance and speed. There is a chance that the Princeton 440 specialist will win, but he may have to do better than his 10 seconds against the Tiger, and I hope you are satisfied with your educational opportunities, and that your career will be as successful as your educational opportunities.
