AN ACCURATE GAGE

THE announcement that the Technology Christian Association annual drive for funds will start at the Institute tomorrow was probably not unexpected by the many students who are cognizant of the work of the Association.

The number of men who have benefited from the work of the Association is large, in fact there is hardly a man at the Institute who has not called at the T. C. A. office at Walker, and on leaving felt a sense of personal gain through the visit.

And since the service is gratis, the financial means for the organization's support is found other than directly from the beneficiary. The T. C. A. refuses to accept pay for its work, but it does ask that the men who have seen the desirability of the continuance of its service make this possible by voluntary contribution.

It is hoped that the results of the drive will be satisfactory, for they will not only measure the service that the T. C. A. will be able to render in the future, but will also serve as an accurate gage of the value placed upon the Association by the entire student body.

TRAMP, TRAMP, TRAMP

IN the good old days, as they say, students in Athens did not spend all their time in sitting on the ground listening to the learned gentlemen addressing them.

In Roman times history tells us Caesar studied and wrote on the march. Even in the so-called Dark Ages the monasteries, wherein most of the learning of the time was to be found, had their long corridors and walks, for the monks to pace along for hours at a time.

But in our modern state of civilization, somehow the student class seem to be losing their precious inheritance of the power and desire to walk. Many times we have known Institute men to wait five minutes for a street car merely to ride across the bridge.

There is hardly another form of physical exercise which offers as much good for a minimum of mental exhaustion as walking does. It brings into play practically all one's muscles, and yet leaves the eyes and brain free to see what is going on about us.

In and about Boston there are literally hundreds of places well worth a Saturday or Sunday afternoon trip. There are places historically famous; acres of woodland in the Blue Hills; Arnold Arboretum, with its great collection of plant life; Castle Island, with its maritime views; the Metropolitan Parkways; to mention but a very few.

These places are well worth seeing in themselves, and for the reflection which they are sure to cause in even a Technology student's mind. Not alone by technical thoughts does man exist. The great outdoors has always been a source of pleasure and inspiration, and when one adds the benefits of a weekly four or five hour walk, he has a goal anybody should be pleased to strive for.

Soon winter will be here with snow storms and snappy weather. There is no better insurance against colds than a long walk cross-country, wading through drifts of snow, clambering over stone walls, sliding down hills, and generally acting like a brute man in full possession of his strength, for the sheer joy of living.

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of THE TECH:

The Lounger has quite appropriately reminded us that our last year's financial drive dragged along for five weeks.

This year we have set aside but one week within which to reach our goal of $2,000.00, $300.00 less than last year. However, it may be of interest to those who may be a bit nervous to know that we will close the campaign in less than a week if the quota is reached.

This is you—at college

SEEKING a symbolic figure to represent Knowledge, let us turn away from the muses of antiquity and the be-capped and be-gowned youth of our own day.

How about the Football Player Tackling a Dummy? Isn't he typical of everything you do in these four years?

You are the Football Player. The dummy is every knotty problem you tackle, every effort to earn your way through, every examination, every campus activity.

Tackle the dummy hard, and you'll be ready for even bigger tests in the game of business or professional life.

Do not say about this symbol, "How clever", and let it go at that. It is worth nothing unless it reminds you to get the spirit of the Tackler into your work.

By his earnestness he seems to feel the thrill of combat. With set jaws and muscles tense he plunges at the dummy. For him it is alive, and the practice is a means to win the game.

If you intend to help score touchdowns after college, here is a man to measure up to.
