Hockey Team Goes On Ice Monday and Plays B. U. Dec. 8

Monday night sees the opening of the active hockey season for the Institute candidates, when the team will go on the Arena ice for the first practice of the year. The first ice of the season will be put on the surface Friday night in preparation for the big hockey carnival on the following night, and the Institute team will be one of the first to use the rink for practice.

A game with the newly organized team which is to represent Boston University in hockey this year has been arranged for December 8, just four days after the teams go on the ice for the first time, and in order to have any sort of a showing then it is imperative that the men go out on the track and work up some wind.

Coach Blacklock will be at the Arena Monday evening to take charge of the skaters, and should have a large squad to attend to if the 50 odd men who attended the meeting all turn up for practice. In addition to Captain Herb Hayden, left wing, Jerry Dalton, center, will put in a strong bid for his old position. Massey will try to fill the goal, and other men who were with the squad a part of last year, will also be on hand.

TECH STUDENTS who contemplate the purchase or rental of Dress Clothing will do well to patronize the Boston Dress Suit Co., 309 Washington St., Boston. They can make their selection from a stock of Brand New Silk Lined Clothing of latest young men's design and fine quality. They sell slightly used clothing at a price that is very attractive, and the regular 25 per cent discount for students makes rental reasonable. Any accessory may be rented or they will outfit from head to foot.—Adv.

FIRST BASKETBALL CUT EXPECTED AT END OF THIS WEEK

Both Varsity and Freshman Coaches Hand Squads Plenty of Work

Yesterday afternoon all basketball candidates were put through a hard session by Coach Byerley. Now that the preliminary practice has gotten well under way, the aspirants for the Technology five are settling down to a real routine. As December will soon be here and with it the opening of the college basketball season, Coach Byerley intends to make a preliminary selection of members of the squad as soon as possible. Although the Technology tossers do not have any games on their schedule until January the sooner work is started with the squad in regard to developing good team work, the better the chances will be for turning out a winning combination.

Coach Byerley has had a good opportunity now to look over the various candidates, and will probably make the first cut by the end of the week. The basketball squad will then consist of about 16 men, and with this number the coach will have a much better chance to discover and remedy any faults a man may have. This week is the last opportunity candidates will have for coming out for the basketball team, since after the first five of the Yale runners passing out after crossing the line, Penn State won the freshman title.

cut is made all efforts will be directed to developing the men who are out into a team with good, fast plays.

Freshman Cut Soon

All who are interested in trying out for the squad should report to the basketball manager in the A. A. office or to Captain Cook any afternoon this week. A number of new men have reported during the last week so the competition for team positions is keen and in view of the fact that the first selections for the squad will probably be made the end of the week, all candidates will put their best efforts into the practice periods and some hard scrimmages can be expected for the remainder of the week.

Coach Hitchcock of the freshman basketball squad sent the first year men through a snappy drill yesterday. As it was only his second workout with the men, he has not had a chance to judge what material there is on hand. The members of the squad appreciate the way he is taking hold of the practices, and they can be depended upon to put forth their best efforts in order to turn out a team which will make the other freshmen teams hustle to keep pace with them. As there are many freshmen candidates also, a selection will probably be made soon of those who have shown up best in practice, and a start will be made in developing fast team work.

HIGGINS LEAD OVER HENDRIE FORTY YARDS

Sanborn in Old Form

Elmer Sanborn ran steadily and well all through the race, keeping always in the first group of harriers who were following Higgins and Hendrie as those two superspeedsters fought each other. Never spectacularly but dependably as he always has run Elmer made possible the low team score by his good showing. He finished eleventh but as Carnegie failed to score five men Dykeman's fourth place was cast out, moving Elmer up to tenth in the score.

Bemis Close Behind Elmer

Frank Bemis deserves especial commendation for the manner in which he behaved under fire. Generally a slow man at the start and thus always faced with the handicap of picking up later on, Bemis reversed affairs and went out from the start at a pace which kept him in front of the worst crowding. Not satisfied with this, however, Frank plugged on passing man after man, beating out Horton of Penn State and Williams of Cornell right at the tape which he broke at Elmer's heels. If the scoring had only stopped there, with three men instead of five Technology would have won a championship for with three men in the Cardinal and Gray total was 23 to 28 for Syracuse the next lowest.

Gubby Holt Shines

Gubby Holt also stood the trial by fire, the acid test of a big championship run, in wonderful fashion. Never a brilliant runner but always a steady one Holt maintained his position all through the six miles and was thirty-third man across the line, the fourth scoring Engineer. Had there only been a team mate with Gubby it would have put Technology in front of the Eli representatives but Leo Poore who completed the Institute total was back in 62nd place, scoring 59 due to the casting out of the places of the runners, whose teams failed to finish five men. In this way Holt's thirty-third place counted only 31 points.

Bud Robertson and Roger Parkinson followed Leo Poore in the order named, all three men coming in a group. Such groupings in big runs are important if they can be pushed up far enough ahead but back behind half a hundred scorers they have little effect on the results.

Grossman Shows Well for Frosh

M. L. Grossman gave the biggest surprise for the Institute frosh by the way in which he worked up from a position hopelessly back in the ruck to second scoring place for the Engineer yearlings. Rooney was the first 1926 hill and dale man to count for Technology, then came Grossman, Davidson, Symonds, Lord, Walter, and Steimer. The team total was 215, placing the frosh in sixth position. The freshman race was a stiff one.

Corporation More Liberal

Athletics at Technology ought to pick up considerably this year, due to the added interest and liberal appropriations granted by the Corporation and the Advisory Council. Practically every sport at the Institute is feeling the effects of the new impetus given it during the past year, and big things may be looked for in all quarters.
