The World's Affairs

Jan. 27. The latest move by the Fuji, the Japanese government, in the coal question, is interesting. The new coal loan to China is being made at 3½ per cent instead of 5 per cent, as was expected. The rate of interest is lower because of the large amount of gold purchased by the Chinese government. The Fuji has also promised to make additional loans to China.

"What's the matter with the old bridge," and the matter will be dropped, said the New York Times. "The new bridge, however, will be built." A new bill was introduced in Congress to authorize the construction of a new bridge over the river. The matter will be debated and voted upon next week.

Refugee Children

Jan. 27. The new plan for the relief of refugee children in Europe is being discussed in the United Nations. The plan calls for the establishment of refugee centers in various parts of Europe to provide shelter and education for the children. The plan is expected to be adopted by the United Nations at its next meeting.

The theaters

The new Broadway show, "The Girl in the Red Dress," is scheduled to open tomorrow night at the Imperial Theater. The play, written by David Mamet, tells the story of a young woman who is trying to make it in New York City. The cast includes a number of well-known actors, including Meryl Streep and Al Pacino.

The Business World

The stock market has experienced a significant decline this week, as investors become increasingly concerned about the prospects for the economy. The Dow Jones Industrial Average has fallen by more than 1000 points in the past week, and many analysts believe that the market could continue to decline in the coming months. The Federal Reserve has already taken steps to try to stabilize the market, but some economists believe that more aggressive action may be necessary to prevent a full-blown economic crisis.
