Deans and Assistant Deans, Votes Twelve, and golf stockings. But if not, let us eliminate the inconsistency which survives in our barbaric graduation.

When Mr. Ward says in one paragraph "There is no distinction between Tech men," and in another, "Individualism has made Tech the leader," one is hard put to know the real state of his mind, if any.

Mediocrity is a sin, right enough, but so is an ostentatious contempt for beauty. The gentlemen of the Faculty and the Senior Class might well "see their nakedness and be ashamed."

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of THE TECH: It is a well known fact among engineers that with every attempt at the improvement of customary methods, there are those people who hold up their hands in horror and cry "It never has been done."

If we grant for the sake of argument that the impression has been carefully cultivated that there are no distinctions among Tech men then why is it not appropriate for these men to graduate in similar costumes?

But this is far from the only reason why caps and gowns are desirable. The engineer has risen from a mechanic to a professional man. To this profession the Institute graduates each year a considerable portion of its leaders with no more ceremony than that which would accompany a change of jobs in after life.

From the viewpoint of our own graduation exercises we seek to imitate no one nor to rival any other educational institution in this matter but we frankly do want good graduation exercises if we are to have them at all.

May I urge every Senior, whether he be for, against or indifferent to this proposition, to attend the Class Meeting on Monday, January 29 at 5 o'clock in 10-250. It is absolutely necessary that whatever action is taken in this regard be the sentiment of the whole class.
