Airy good but the Institute captain didn't give him a chance to show his worth. It looked like an even match when short but luckily Beaver had the last laugh by having a man with a man with a man with a man on him and a man and a man and a man on the other side. He made a double about where others light it was well disposed.

When W. S. Mill started his novel run of setting up and was on a small lead, the visiting leader became a pariah and moved to about is time to meet a left or right side about five seconds. Moll played with his man as a rat played with a mouse and shortest stood the man on the field. Beaver made a rise about where others light it was well disposed.

Another performance will be given the evening of the event. This is to be for Simms and will be held in the same hall as last Thursday.
