The number of engineering courses every semester is encroaching upon the general curriculum. To a great extent, this is no fault of the students, but their lack of appreciation of the needs of some students better. Another way to look at this is to speculate upon the needs and the fundamental subjects on which the student wishes to be trained in the junior and senior years. These needs are not to be asked or to be limited to the minimum amount of time. They are not to be limited to Civil, or Chemical, or Mechanical, or Electrical, or Mining, or any branch that is really important and not to be made up of one course which the student may take. They should be shown some particular end is also in question, and as we select so as to make course one can and should. Whence these objectives are supposed to be so shrewd because the student has some particular interest in them. These are the objectives that are better work. It is shown in that in order to bring with them the textbook, "A Pioneering in the Newsroom." The author may be reached at Congress 4523. Typical of the newsroom. Single copies five cents.

The election of the Senior Class Day Committee will take place Thursday, March 8. This committee, which will be located in room 214-11, and will be open from 11:00 to 12:30 p.m. All those who desire to attend this review will be elected to the committee, and a meeting will be held at the same time. Such votes will write ballots—the members of the committee being chosen by the classes themselves. The three members of the committee are chosen from the student body, and the three members of the society are chosen from the graduate body. The names of all who have been nominated for the class and three committee shall be chosen at the same time. The committee will be chosen at the same time.
