OPPOSITION TO CAPS AND GOWNS ADMITS DEFEAT (Continued from Page 1.)

Those interviewed seems to be that the bulk of the class is indifferent, and doesn't care much whether caps and gowns are worn or not. The feeling between two very small factions is intense and the clash of wills and personalities is being watched with interest.

T. P. Pitre Engaged

Miss Gladys H. Allen, an instructor in stenography at C. S. S., has announced her engagement to Thomas P. Pitre, who is an instructor in chemistry at Technology.

the light construction of the bridge renders good pavement impossible although many kinds have been tried. It prevents the pavement from being firmly secured to the floor planks, and also tends to loosen the floor planks and stringers.

Welles Bosworth, the architect and designer of the Institute, has recently been quoted as being in favor of a bridge that would harmonize with the Technology group, that is, broad, low causeway without columns or any high architectural features. He is opposed to any islands or fill, stating that it would mar the beauty of the Basin.

Professor C. M. Spofford '93, head of the Civil and Sanitary Engineering Department of the Institute and bridge expert of Fay, Spofford, and Thorndike declined to be quoted until he had made a more thorough investigation of the condition of the bridge.

CHEMICAL SOCIETIES HEAR DR. G. J. ESSELON

According to Dr. G. J. Esselon, of Skinner, Sherman, and Esselen, Inc., the two chief difficulties of the chemist in working with business men is either an underappreciation or an overappreciation of the value of the chemist in his employer's business. He spoke at a Chemical Society smoker Friday night.

MATH CLUB HEARS TWO SCIENTIFIC LECTURES

Discussions of "Dynamic Similarity" and "The Path of Light in a Gravitational Field" by Professor C. L. E. Moore and J. A. Buckler '24, respectively, featured the meeting of the Math Club held last Thursday evening.

The following officers were elected: J. A. Buckler '24, president; F. W. Cunningham '25, vice-president; Isaac Brimberg '24, secretary; and Miss Gertrude Harris '24, treasurer.

Musicians Perform Tonight

The Combined Musical Clubs will give a concert at the Edison club, in Roxbury, this evening. After the program the jazz band will provide for a dance.

space include: one game lounge, 28 by 28; one study room, 70 by 32; one activity lounge, 32 by 78. The lounge space at present is two 20 by 42 rooms and two 20 by 20. There will be a study room which can be used for small dances.

There are to be 14 new offices arranged around the walls of the present gym, all to be 14 by 24, which is larger than any of the present or proposed activity lounge in the center of the gym floor will be two stories high, with a skylight over head. The fourth floor there will be 18 small offices, of the same size, and a balcony overlooking the lounge.
