Tech Field Dangerous for Innocent Watcher

The Thirty-six of the New England Championships at the American Institute Tech Field Pool Friday, the spectators had a chance to see the best players of which they could turn their attention if they did not hurry the regular events. The field seemed to be the most dangerous after midnight when one and by a miracle no one was hurt. The clean occurred when one of the competitors in the hammer throw had the chain which attached the ball to the handle break while he was in the act of throwing the weight. A call was made on the runner to stop it and it is supposed to stop all hammer throws, but in no case on Friday. The ball went clear through the crowd, leaving a hole in a citizen's ball and gone through. The balls had all the crowd neatly, front of the doors for the season, and the last time that one was lost this time.
