Gloria Andress Sing at Lowell

Next Tuesday evening from 7:30 to 8 o'clock the Technology Choral-Society will present a program of the most popular exercises of the Lowell Night School. This will be the last concert of the season. The program will be held in the hall today. All Tech students are invited to attend these exercises.

College of Agricultural Sciences

As the name indicates, the College of Agricultural Sciences is an educational institution devoted to the education of students in the field of agriculture. The college offers undergraduate and graduate programs in a variety of disciplines, including crop science, animal science, and environmental sciences. Students enrolled in the college have the opportunity to gain hands-on experience through internships, research projects, and fieldwork.

A Record of Continuous News Service for 42 Years

The college is known for its commitment to serving the agricultural industry and the communities it serves. It is recognized for its research and development efforts, which have contributed significantly to the advancement of agriculture and the environment.

Cigarette Causes Fire in Campus Hall

A fire caused by a cigarette started in the campus hall last night. The fire was put out by a fire extinguisher, and no other damage was done. The cause of the fire is being investigated.

Fences to be Erected

A fence will be erected to prevent unauthorized access to the campus. The fence will be located on the side of the campus facing the street.

Calenadar

The following events are scheduled for the week:

- Monday: Meeting of the Student Council
- Tuesday: Lecture on environmental science
- Wednesday: Laboratory session in agriculture
- Thursday: Field trip to local farm
- Friday: Seminar on sustainable agriculture

For more information, please visit the college's website.